BRITISH EMPIRE AS MODEL FOR NEW LEAGUE

HEAVY DEFICIT IN SIX MONTHS

United States Budget Figures

Washington, Jan. 3.
The first six months of the fiscal year in the United States has terminated with a deficit of $1,156,000,000.
The gross public debt has reached $24,000,000,000

BRITAIN COMPLIES

SAFETY OF FUKIEN RESIDENTS

WITHDRAWAL ADVISED

London, Jan. 3.
The Chinese Government,
having decided to take warlike action to suppress the rebellion in the province of Fukien, requested the British Charge d'Affaires in Peking on December 30, that British subjects in Amoy, Foochow and the neighbourhood be warned to withdraw to the islands of Kulangsu and Nantai respectively for safety.

About 300 British subjects live in the province of Fukien, of whom the great majority normally reside in Amoy and Foochow. The greater number of these residents have their homes on the islands mentioned and conduct their business on the mainland.

The remainder of the British subjects in the province consists chiefly of missionaries.

The British Consuls at Amoy and Foochow have been instructed to advise, at their discretion, British subjects to withdraw to places of safety.

The fact that the advice of the Chinese Government has thus been passed on to British subjects in no way absolves the former from its due responsibility to do its utmost to afford protection and to avoid damage to British property, not only at Amoy and Foochow but throughout the province.—British

LAGNY RAILWAY DISASTER

SIX OFFICIALS TO BE CHARGED

Paris, Jan. 3.
Six officials of the Eastern Railway are being charged in connection with the terrible disaster at Lagny on December 23, when over 200 people lost their lives.

The charges are inattention, imprudence, inefficiency, negligence and the non-observance of regulations.—Reuter.

U.S. SEEKING LIQUOR REVENUE

New Tax Proposal For Congress

Washington, Jan. 3.
It is learned that one of the first measures to be introduced in the House of Representatives will be one seeking to impose a liquor tax, estimated to yield $500,000, annually, exclusive of tariff rates.—Reuter.

ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH TO CONGRESS

NATIONAL ECONOMIC PLAN

Washington, Jan. 3.
"The finest repeal of the Constitution I have ever heard," was the pithy comment of Mr.
McNary, the Republican leader, at the conclusion of President Roosevelt's first personal address to Congress, when he dealt generally with the Recovery programme and objectives.

General opinion in the House and out of it seems to be that the President said extremely little in a very long speech, but there is reason to believe that, apart from prior discussions with political leaders helping to clear the way, Mr. Roosevelt is assured of an harmonious session.

His speech was greeted with applause from all parts of the House particularly when he made allusions to gold stabilisation and when he asserted that prosperity depends upon the farmers' well-being.

PROTECTION AGAINST EXPLOITATION

"We are definitely on the road to recovery," claimed the President.

"A line has been rightly drawn between those to whom recovery means a return to old methods—the number of which is small—and those for whom recovery means reform of many of the old methods, readjustments of ways of thinking and therefore of many of our social and economic arrangements.
Our task is to improve, to alter when necessary, and in all cases to go forward.

END OF LAISSEZ FAIRE.

"We have asked many citizens to surrender their licences to do as they please in business, but the State has given in exchange protection against exploitation by fellow men and combinations.
President Roosevelt asserted that the Government's credit had been fortified by drastic reductions in expenditures and economies.

An overwhelming majority of the banks which were re-opened last Spring are in a sound condition.

Six hundred million dollars in frozen deposits are being restored to depositors in banks which are not being permitted to re-open.

N.R.A. ACHIEVEMENTS.

The President went on to review the achievements of the National Recovery Administration in securing the re-employment of several millions of men and the reorganisation of industry, together with an assurance of reasonable profits together.

Industry will pay proper conditions to labour.

The abolition of child labour was a distinct achievement of the N.R.A.

NATIONAL PLAN.

"We have created as a permanent feature of our modernised industrial structure a system by which it will continue under the supervision of the government, but not under its arbitrary dictation."

He looked forward to the not very distant future when annual appropriations of government would wholly be covered by current revenue, enabling work to proceed with the National Plan.

Such National Plan, in a generation or two, would return many times the money spent upon it by conserving natural resources and enabling millions of people to take better advantage of their opportunities.

FOREIGN FIELD.

Turning to international affairs, President Roosevelt said: "I cannot present a picture of complete optimism. We seek, with our neighbours, avoidance of territorial expansion and interference by one nation in the affairs of another.

"We are all seeking the restoration of international commerce in ways which preclude the building up of large favourable trade balances by one nation at the expense of the other."

TRADE BARRIERS.

Fears of aggression and the expenditure of vast sums on armaments continued, with the building up of trade barriers, to prevent any great progress in peace or trade agreements.

The United States, he added, cannot participate in the political arrangements of Europe, but is ready to co-operate at any time in practical measure on a world basis for the immediate reduction of armaments and the lowering of trade barriers.

WAR DEBTS.

Regarding war debts to the United States, President Roosevelt said he expects to report on this matter separately later.

Several nations, acknowledging their debts, had made token payments. Others had defaulted.
Finland alone had paid in fully.

TRICKS OF THE RICH.

Returning to the domestic problems of the country, the President foreshadowed stringent measures against persons and groups who have been living off their neighbours by unethical and criminal methods. He castigated tax dodgers and the high officials of banks and corporations who had grown rich at the expense of stock-

President Roosevelt, looking quite content.

GRAVE C.E.R. CRISIS

RAILWAY MAY CEASE TO FUNCTION

COAL SUPPLY OBSTRUCTION

Harbin, Jan. 4.
A grave crisis now faces the Chinese Eastern Railway, which may be compelled to suspend its services unless agreement is reached for the purchase of coal from the Siberian mines.

The possibility of the Railway ceasing to function has already created a tense situation, which has been aggravated by the publication of the acrimonious correspondence between Mr. Li Shao-ken, of the Manchukuo
Foreign Office, and M. Bandura, Soviet Vice-President of the Railway.

Meanwhile the local press,
Chambers of Commerce and merchants, backed by Manchukuo officials, are busily agitating for revision of the Railway's freight charges.—Reuter.

ANGLO-LATVIAN TRADE

PLANS FOR A NEW TREATY

London, Jan. 3.
A Latvian delegation will arrive in London to-morrow to open negotiations for an Anglo-Latvian Commercial Treaty, and will meet Major Colville, Parliamentary Secretary of the Department of Overseas Trade at the Board of Trade. The delegation will be led by the Latvian Minister in London, M. Charles Zarine.

The goods in which Latvia is particularly interested are timber, butter and bacon, and Britain's export interests in Latvia concern coal and herrings.—British Wireless.

PREMIER'S HOLIDAY ENDING.

London, Jan. 3.
The Prime Minister is expected to return early next week to London from Looe, where he has been spending the Christmas recess. Later in the week, he will probably visit the King at Sandringham.—British Wireless.

holders and the public.
The President also said that the strong arm of the law was required against crimes of organised banditry, lynchings and kidnappings.

PROHIBITION REPEAL

He thought that the repeal of Prohibition should materially aid in eliminating crimes arising from the illegal traffic in liquor.
The Government would continue to supplement the work of State and other agencies for the relief

MUSSOLINI AND SIMON

OPENING OF ROME CONVERSATIONS

Rome, Jan. 3.
The use of the "charter" of the British Commonwealth of Nations as a model for the reform of the League of Nations is the interesting suggestion put forward in Rome in connexion with Italy's demand for League revision.

It is understood that the future of the League formed one of the principal subjects discussed between Sir John Simon and Signor Mussolini to-day, when the British Foreign Minister, who was accompanied by Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador, began his conversations with the Italian Premier at the Palazzo Venezia
this afternoon.

"The meeting was cordial" states an official communique issued at the conclusion of the meeting, which lasted for two hours.

EXPLORATORY TALKS.

It is understood that the first conversations were exploratory of the ground and that Signor Mussolini explained the lines on which he wants the League of Nations revised.

As regards disarmament, it is believed that the Italian and British viewpoints are very close.

SIGNIFICANT ARTICLE.

Italian attention is chiefly concentrated on the artificial irregularities of the Peace Treaty, rather than upon technical disarmament, while, as regards League reform,
the newspaper Lavora Fascista, in a significant article, demands reconstruction on the principles regulating the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The journal declares that proposals on those lines were, in fact, presented in Paris in 1919
by British statesmen.

Sir John Simon and Signor Mussolini will meet again to-morrow.—Reuter.

A NAVAL RACE WARNING

ITALIAN COMMENT ON SITUATION

Rome, Jan. 3.
The report on the Italian Naval Estimates, tabled in the Chamber, recommends a European agreement to apply the spirit of the Four-Power Pact to naval disarmament.

The report utters a warning that the world has already started a race in naval armament, arising from the Japanese penetration of Manchuria, which has stirred American apprehensions, causing her to increase her Navy, which, in turn, is leading Britain to lay down more ships.—Reuter.

SIR EDWARD ELGAR IMPROVES

Able to Return to His Home

London, Jan. 3.
During the past fortnight
there has been an improvement in the condition of the eminent composer, Sir

SAVING OF OVER TWO MILES

Work is to commence in the near future on the widening of Magazine Gap Road, between May Road and Stubbs Road, in order to make it available for motor traffic. When the scheme is completed, the road will have a width of approximately 20 feet.

The matter is as yet only in its preliminary stages, but tenders are now being called for. The scheme, when completed will fill a long-felt need, for not only will it relieve the congestion of motor traffic in Queen's Road East but will greatly facilitate motor access between the city and the higher levels.

SERRAVALLO'S TONIC

(Cinchona and Iron Wine)

From the 5th Medical Department of the Consellor Aulique Prof. Dr. Branca at the I. R. General Hospital at Vienna.

At the request of the maker, "Serravallo's Tonic" was introduced into this Department by Dr. Stein in order to try its value. To get a comparative measure of the results obtained, the patients were weighed every week, always with regard to the time of their meals, the amount of food eaten and the quantity of fecal matter passed, and measured as to Haemoglobin, according to Fleischl, for the Erythrocyte coefficient, according to Thoma-Zeiss, and for the pressure of the blood, according to Basch. The results observed after giving the patients "Serravallo's Tonic" will be seen in the following table:

Age	Profession	Illness	Duration of Illness	Weight of Body on admission	Weight of Body on leaving	Amount of Food eaten on admission	Amount of Food eaten on leaving	No. of red corpuscles on admission	No. of red corpuscles on leaving	Pressure of the blood on admission	Pressure of the blood on leaving

E. M., 18 years	Businessman	Chlorosis	7 wks	43 lb	47 lb	150 g	150 g	—	—	—	—

From the above figures, it will be seen that the patients show an increase in the quantity of Haemoglobin, in the number of red corpuscles, therefore that the changes which are generally produced by treatment with Iron are also produced by giving "Serravallo's Tonic."

I must however remark that this mixture was willingly taken by two patients, to whom other Iron mixtures had been given, but who could not stand them; that therefore this must be mentioned as an advantage which this mixture has over others: it never caused any disturbance to the stomach. On the contrary, patients suffering from Chlorosis with want of appetite (in consequence of parenchymatous Gastritis) "Serravallo's Tonic" proved itself a very powerful appetiser. The same result was obtained in six other cases with anorexia during convalescence after different illnesses and always had a speedy effect.

The increase of appetite was ascribed by the patients themselves to this mixture, and was most willingly taken on account of its agreeable taste. Therefore "Serravallo's Tonic" is most advisable in cases where the therapeutic use of Iron is intended to act as a tonic to the appetite, such as in primary and secondary Anaemia, in slow convalescence and especially for children.

YOUR CHILDREN

How to Prevent "Hunching"

By Olive Roberts Barton

It doesn't do one bit of good to tell a child to stand up straight. He will do it for a minute or so perhaps, but the instant his mind is on something else, down he slumps again.

He will only hold his chin up and his shoulders back as long as he remembers. True, if he can be made conscious of them altogether without letting anything else interfere, the miraculous might happen. Habit is made up of off-repeated actions.

But I have never known a child who grew straight merely because he was talked into it. Children, fortunately, often do adopt better postures as they grow older, but other things are to be thanked for the change usually.

Mal-nourished Amid Plenty

A mal-nourished child is usually round shouldered, dull-eyed, and anything but soldier-like in his bearing. Such children are not invariably poor. The mal-nourished child can be found anywhere, at the well covered tables of the rich as well as in the unemployed home. A child on three none-too-plentiful meals a day may be getting all the proteins, starches, sugars, fats and vitamins he needs because the food is simple, well-assorted; and what is better still, he may have a good digestive tract that makes the most of it.

The child who has had his digestive organs weakened through past illness, or had a poor beginning when a baby may not be absorbing all the "good" of what he eats. Such a child may have well-to-do parents. Rich and poor alike may suffer.

The causes of inability to take proper care of food are not always easy to identify. I lay most hunched-up shoulders, and sagging heads, however, to some weakness in the child, not merely careless habit. The one who has grown well from birth, who has had a correct diet from babyhood, including cod liver oil and calcium-containing foods, and who has never had an undermining sickness is usually straight. His head is set well on his shoulders, his hips are flat and held in, his stomach flat, too—not protruding. No sign of rickets. No sign of undue weariness or dullness or slumping.

Over Study Causes "Hunch"

Of course children may get the "student hunch" from studying too long without compensating exercise. And adolescents may be compelled to crouch a bit because bones grow long and the muscles cannot keep up with them. Muscles may pull shoulders over until they, too, have done their growing to match the bones.

But little children should be straight. Long hours of sleep on

Wise Use of Cosmetics

By Alicia Hart

Cosmetics should be used to emphasize your own natural beauty.

The wise woman does not only apply makeup in an effort to change her appearance. She uses it to bring out the good points of her face and to obliterate the bad ones.

A famous manufacturer of cosmetics says that all women should concentrate on improving the appearance of their eyes.

A comfortable bed, plenty of exercise and proper food should make a soldier of a child. If there is something keeping his chin on his chest the doctor should be consulted. Gym work may help, too. At any rate, mere words are not the answer, or half of it.

Artists, sculptors and beauty authorities agree that beautiful eyes practically assure a woman of true natural beauty. Therefore, choose your eye cosmetics carefully. See that they flatter your eyes.

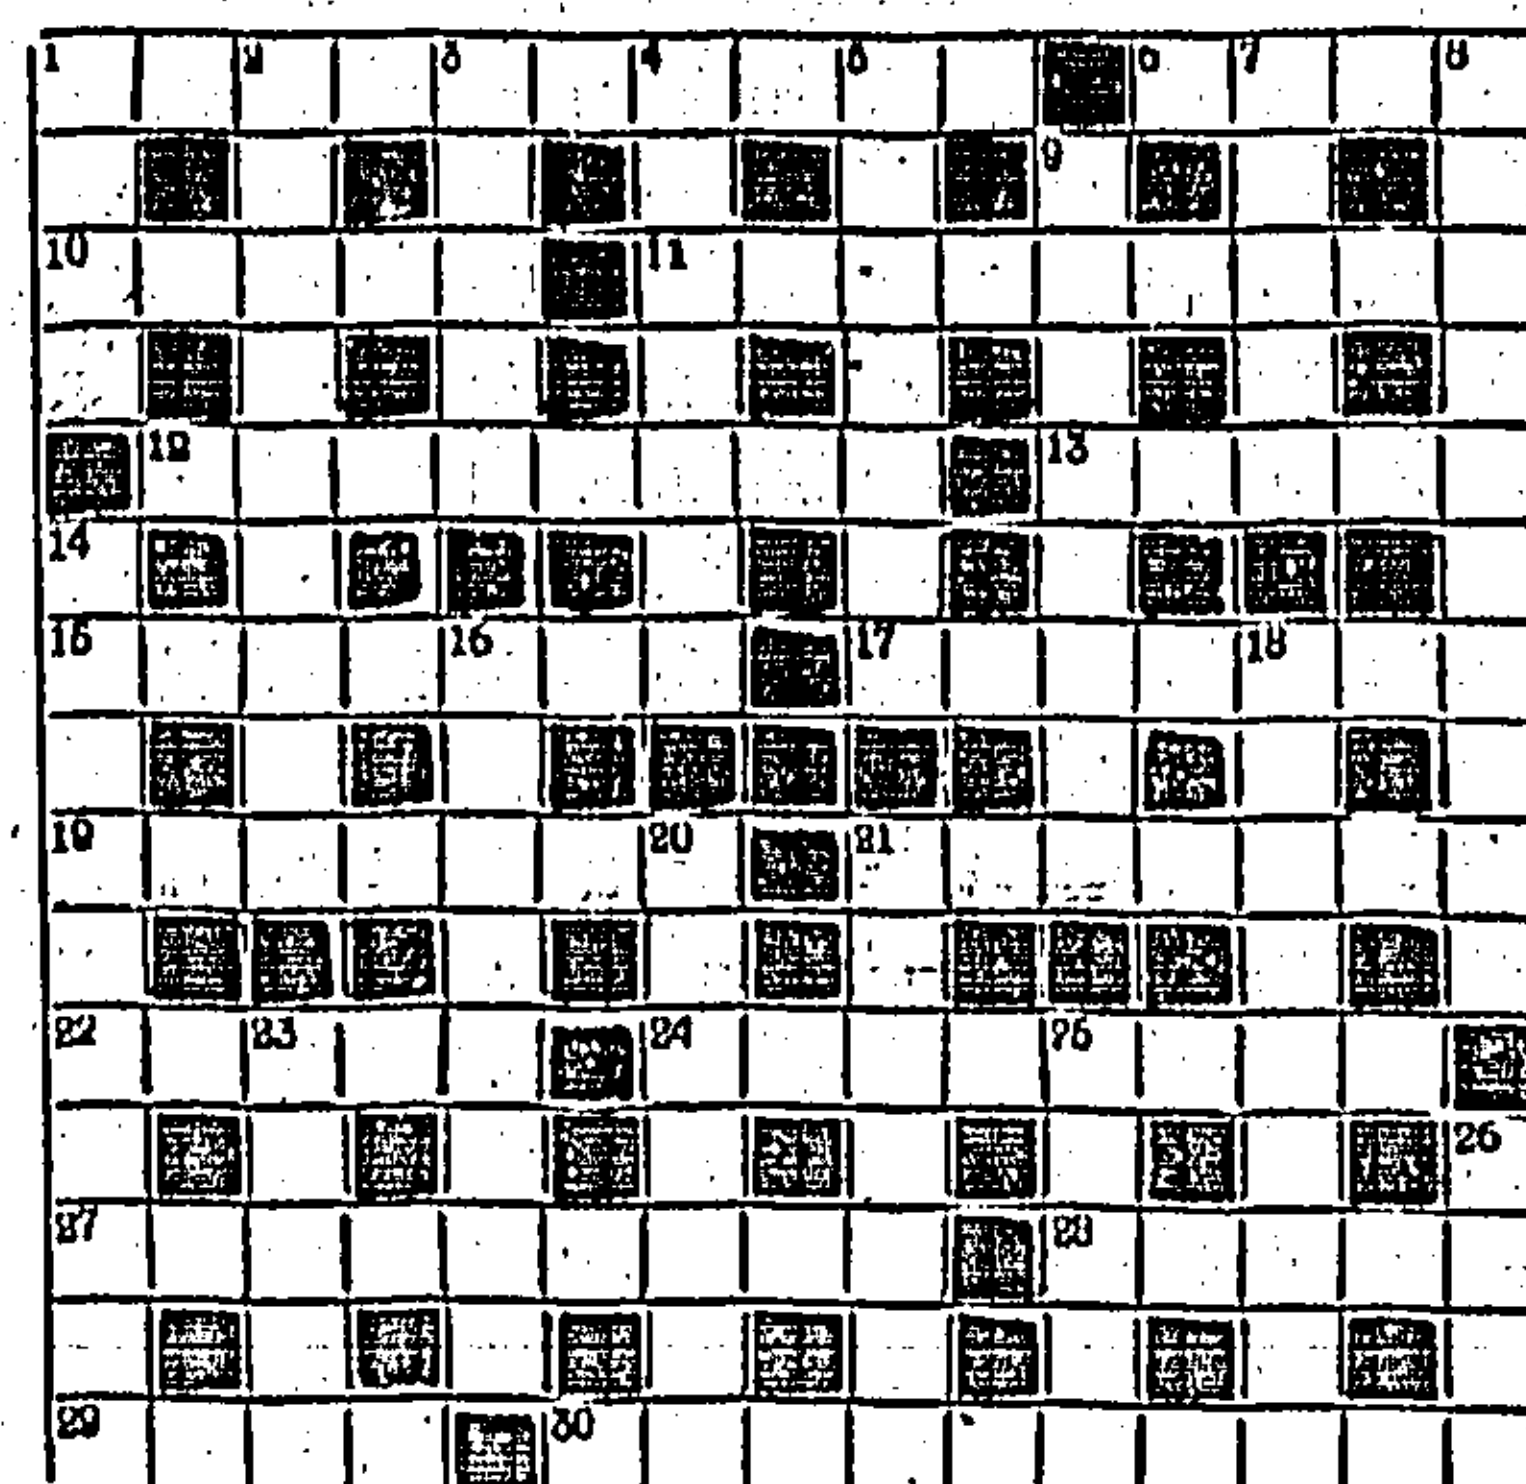

Use of Rouge

Putting rouge high on your cheeks and blending it upward your eyes will help to keep the interest in your face centred where it should be.

Cosmetics are intended to make you look natural and healthy. There is simply no use in using an orange-toned powder over a skin which has a healthful, warm pink glow. You defeat the purpose of make-up when you make that mistake.

Lipstick, of course, should be used to put a natural-looking shade on lips that lack colour. The best way to determine just what colour lipstick you need is to pinch your lips and then survey them in a mirror. The colour that they become after the pinch is about the shade which you should select in a lipstick.

CHAPTER XXXIV

The girl went on without waiting for a reply. "Maybe that's a queer thing to ask but—oh, I mean it, Mr. Bannister! There's no reason why you should take such risks!"

"What risks?" Bannister asked. Juliet France unclasped her hands and immediately clasped them together again. She was leaning forward and her eyes, watching his intently, seemed to darken.

"There are risks," she said. "Don't you see that I could never forgive myself if anything happened? You and your aunt have been so kind to me. You've brought me here to your home—treated me like a guest. I couldn't bear to cause any trouble for you! That's why I want you to promise to give it up, to stop trying to find out who killed Tracy King."

Bannister broke the corner from a piece of toast and buttered it. "It seems to me," he said, "that you're greatly exaggerating the situation. There isn't the slightest danger."

"Oh, but there is!" The exclamation was so swift it was startling. Bannister put down the toast. "What sort of danger?" he asked. "What do you expect to happen?"

The girl lowered her eyes. When she raised them a moment later she said, "I don't know. But I'm afraid it will be something terrible!—I wish you'd do as I ask!"

He was to remember those words more than once in the days to come. He was to remember and wonder how he could have treated them so carelessly at the time.

"Well," he said, "I can't promise to do that. But as for letting myself in for any danger, I assure you I'm not going to do anything foolhardy."

"You—won't give it up?" the girl asked slowly. "No, Miss France, but if you've been doing any worrying on my account you can set your mind at rest right now. There's not the slightest reason for it."

"But you don't need to do it!" the girl urged. "There isn't any reason why you should. Your aunt told me you were only working on the newspaper for a little while. You could give it all up so easily—"

"I don't quite see it that way," Bannister said steadily. "But as for danger—that's ridiculous! And now suppose you give me a little more of that hot coffee."

She filled the cup with steaming coffee. "More toast?" she asked. "No more, thanks."

There was a little more casual conversation between them while Bannister finished his breakfast. Ten minutes later he left the house and walked the block to the street car line.

His gloomy mood of an hour earlier had disappeared. The sky was still gray and looked as though snow might fall before evening, but the crisp, cold air was invigorating.

Bannister, as he swung aboard the street car and found a seat, was still thinking about the girl who had sat across the breakfast table from him. In the blue and white gingham dress she had looked rather like an old fashioned picture.

And she had warned him about dangers he might encounter. That was amusing. Dangers in the sleepy little home town of Tremont!

He opened his newspaper, turned to his favourite comic strip and then the sport pages. By the time he had finished with them they were down town. He left the car and walked to the Evening Post building.

As usual he climbed the stairs to the editorial rooms instead of waiting for the elevator. Jim Paxton was in his office and called to him as he passed the door.

"Hello, Jim," he said. "What's on your mind?" "Hello, Bannister," he said. "What's on your mind?"

Paxton leaned back in his chair. "The Tremont Club's having a dinner next week," he said. "They want you to make a talk for them."

"Good Lord! You know I can't make speeches." "Oh, it isn't as bad as that. You don't have to prepare a speech. Just say a few words, something impromptu."

Bannister held up his hands in protest. "Not me, Jim! You don't think I'd be roped in on a thing like that, do you? Say, I'd rather face a rifle squad. Look here, I thought you were a friend of mine!"

Paxton's expression was rather sheepish. "I knew you wouldn't want to do it," he admitted, "but I had to promise to ask you. It was Ben Cameron's idea."

"Then tell Cameron he'll have to find another victim. All my evenings next week are definitely engaged."

"All right, Dave. I'll tell them that. Anything new this morning?" "Not that I know of," Bannister told him. "Have you seen Gaiety around?"

"Saw him a couple of hours ago. You'd better ask Austin. He may be able to tell you where you can find him."

But Bannister did not need to ask Austin where to look for Gaiety. As soon as he stepped into the city room he saw the reporter. Gaiety sat at a desk in a corner of the room and, seated in a chair facing him, was a woman.

Bannister turned to the table on which exchange newspapers from other cities were piled. He was not interested in Gaiety's companion. It would probably be only a few minutes before the interview was ended anyhow. Bannister decided to wait.

He turned carelessly through the newspaper on top of the pile, turned through the second and then something caught his eye. He was deep in the marvels of an ancient temple recently discovered in Mexico when he heard his name.

"Oh, Bannister!" It was Gaiety who had called and now was motioning for him to come over to the desk in the corner.

Bannister crossed the room. He said, "Hello. What's up?" The woman beside Gaiety looked up. Bannister saw that she was wearing a brown coat and brown hat with an orange ribbon on it.

Her face was rather pretty, though it was too broad and her nose inclined to turn up. Her age, he guessed, would be somewhere between 18 and 28. Still, curly hair showed beneath her hat and the rouge on her cheeks had been applied in large pink circles.

Gaiety said, "Miss Connor, this is Mr. Bannister. I'd like him to hear what you've been telling me." The woman looked at Bannister and seemed to hesitate. Her eyes returned to Gaiety's. "Is he on the paper, too?" she asked.

Gaiety nodded. "Yes," he said. "He knows as much about the case as I do." He turned to Bannister. "Miss Connor," he explained, "is a maid at the Coleman's—Parker Coleman's home. She's read about the King murder in the Post and saw my name over the stories."

"That's why she asked for me. She thinks she knows something of importance."

The maid interrupted. She said, "I don't know whether it's important or not. And I don't know if I should have come here. If anyone finds out about it they'll fire me. I know they will!"

"But nobody's going to find out about it," Gaiety reassured her. "I've already told you that. All I want you to do is to tell Mr. Bannister what you've just told me."

The maid's large blue eyes continued to regard Bannister doubtfully. At last she said, "All right—but I don't think I should have come. I've thought about it all week, trying to make up my mind what was the right thing to do. I came down town this morning to see the dentist and when I passed this building and saw it was where the newspaper was printed I decided to come in."

Both men were silent, waiting for her to go on. "I wouldn't have said anything to anybody," the maid continued, her words coming more rapidly.

"Only Mr. King was such a wonderful young man. I've got one of his pictures—autographed. I wrote and asked for it and right away he sent the picture. Wasn't that nice of him? When I heard what

The Australian version of cricket, played by "boys" in Torres Straits, with cowrie shells. Some of the contests are witnessed by large crowds of natives.

The fury of the mob which beat down the steel doors of the San Jose Jail in California and dragged the alleged kidnappers and slayers of Brooke Hart into the street to lynch them is shown vividly in this picture. Amid a rain of bricks and stones, fighting through a fog of tear gas, they crashed the door, using a heavy length of oil well casing as a battering ram.

The triumphant howl "We've got 'em" rang through the San Jose Jail, as the photographer, risking the crowd's fury, snapped this picture, showing the frenzied throng storming at the entrance and struggling for places of vantage as its leaders searched the cells for the alleged killers of Brooke Hart.

Germany had a new political development to speculate on following the elections when General Goering flew to Italy with Prince Philipp of Hesse, the German son-in-law of Italy's king, for a conference with Premier Mussolini. Prince Philipp, who is favoured in certain Nazi circles as a candidate for the German throne, is shown (right) with Goering as they arrived in Rome.

BRITISH COAL AFFECTED BY IMPOST

London, Jan. 3.
British coal owners are making strong representations to the Government regarding the fresh action against British coal imported into France, as recorded in a decree published in the Journal Officiel yesterday.
In 1933 all coal, except that for railways and blast furnaces, paid an import tax of two francs per ton, but by the present decree, coal for railways is no longer exempt and coal for blast furnaces will be taxed at a rate of four francs per ton. Anthracite coal will be taxed at five francs per ton, and is defined in the decree as coal containing less than 10 per cent. of volatile components; and as Belgian anthracite contains just over 10 per cent. it is feared that the British collieries may be specially affected by the higher tax.—British Wireless.

LARGE ESTATE BRITISH EXCHEQUER WILL BENEFIT

London, Jan. 3.
The Chancellor of the Exchequer will benefit substantially by the Death Duties on the estate of Thomas Duncanson, of Tunbridge Wells, whose Will has been proved at £533,727 gross.—British Wireless.

YOUNG NURSE'S DEATH

DISAPPEARANCE OF WEAPON

Dramatic evidence was given by probationary nurse Cynthia Garcia, of the Victoria Hospital yesterday when the coronor's inquiry into the tragic death of probationary nurse Jessie Ann Shum on the morning of November 26, was resumed before Mr. Hamilton. Deceased was in hospital suffering from typhoid, and was found with her throat cut.

The first witness called yesterday was Fung Shiu-kin, translator at the S.C.A. office, who produced a certified copy of a translation of the letter left by the deceased. It read as follows:—"For my crime I deserved a myriad deaths. Please pity my mother and relatives. They are not connected with the letter."

Lucy Constance Mallows, nursing sister at the Victoria Hospital for the past eleven months, said that on November 26 she was on duty from 6 a.m. to 1.30 p.m. Nurse Shum was very sick and did not say very much. Witness did not form any impression as to whether she was depressed or not. She did not have any visitors during the morning. Shortly before 6 a.m. on November 26 witness was called and arrived at the deceased's ward at three minutes to six. As she entered, Sister Seales called for her. Witness went for a pair of forceps and on returning to the ward saw Dr. Newton there. The patient died a little later. Witness found a letter on the pillow. A search was commenced about 6.10 for any weapon or instrument, but none was found. When witness first went to the ward, Sister Seales was there alone. Both amahs were in the ward with Dr. Newton at 6.10. The windows to the balcony were bolted at 6.20.

Replying to the coronor, the witness said that the deceased was not allowed oranges. Oranges like the one exhibited in Court were sometimes in the hospital.

Witness said it was possible for an amah to get an orange for a patient without the sister seeing her.

The coronor: Does that apply to a knife too?

Witness: Yes. Continuing, witness said she found the deceased's handbag under the pillow. She opened it and searched for instruments but found none. She closed the bag, left it in the ward which was locked until the arrival of the Police.

Depressed at Times

Sister Rosa Spry said that she was on afternoon duty on November 25. The deceased was very ill but looked brighter. She was depressed at times. Her first visitors that afternoon were her mother and a Chinese woman, who came together and stayed with her for about one and a half hours. Deceased talked quietly with them. Deceased did not show any signs of trying to get any fruit. For a few days previous they were getting Chinese oranges of the type found in the room. It would have been possible for the amah to get the patient an orange and a sharp knife had the patient asked for one, especially at night, but the amah would have been breaking the rules had she done so.

Ah Kam, the No. 1 amah, was very good at her work and understood patients' diet. She was not a woman liable to give the patient an orange. The other amah, Ah Shap, was a junior, and witness never allowed junior servants to do much for the patients. She did not think anyone else could have given the deceased the orange. The deceased was utterly incapable of getting the orange herself. Between 6.30 and 7 p.m. witness was certain the orange was not in the bed when she washed and fed the patient. No other amahs besides the two mentioned went to the room after 7 p.m.

Had No Troubles.

Miss E. S. Atkins, principal of St. Stephen's College, said that she had known the deceased since January 1928, when deceased had studied under her. She last saw deceased on November 24 in hospital. She appeared excited, and thoughtful. She did not know of anything weighing on deceased's mind. Deceased had no troubles. She was inclined to take the letter written by deceased as having been written during depression, and not describing any specific fact. On November 24 deceased told her she thought she was dying the previous night, and later on said "You think I can get better." About a year ago deceased told her she was unhappy at going back to the Victoria Hospital.

Dr. Newton at this stage remarked that Chinese nurses never liked being at the Victoria Hospital, as they were away from the other nurses. They were not taking any more Chinese nurses there.

Leung Pak-king, mother of the deceased, said her daughter was taken ill early in November. She visited her frequently in hospital. On the afternoon of November 26 she found her daughter in good spirits. Her daughter told her she felt much better. Witness was accompanied by her son's mother-in-law, and they did not take anything to deceased, nor did they give her an orange. Witness knew of no reason why she should have cut her throat.

Asked for a Coffin.

Miss Cynthia Garcia, probationary nurse, said that she went into hospital having been taken ill about a week after Nurse Shum, and was put in the same ward the first day, but was shifted the following day on to the verandah. She never talked with deceased after being shifted, because the window separating them was closed. On the morning of November 25 the window was open, and while at breakfast she heard Nurse Shum call twice to her, and then a third time. Nurse Shum asked her whether she had written to Nurse Chan thanking her for having sent things to them. She replied she had, and asked Nurse Shum if she wanted anything else. Nurse Shum said no, but wanted her to write to her mother and ask for a coffin for her. She was quite serious about it. Witness tried to console Nurse Shum, and told her not to be so silly, as she was getting better. Nurse Shum then said no more.

Witness said she was awake early on the morning of November 26 and saw Sister Seales taking the temperature of Nurse Shum, and after that, saw her talk to Ah Kam, who then went to the wardrobe and got a blanket, which she put over Nurse Shum. Ah Kam then took away her hot water bottle. Both amahs and the Sister went out together. Shortly after they had left, witness said she heard Nurse Shum coughing—a couple of dry coughs. Witness sat up and saw Nurse Shum struggling, kicking the blankets very violently. Nobody entered the ward between the time the amahs left and the time she saw Nurse Shum struggle. She leaned forward to see whether Nurse Shum wanted anything, and saw her hands clinging to the blanket across her throat. She thought she had had an attack of pain. It was then Ah Kam returned with the hot water bottle. She heard the amah ask very excitedly what was the matter, then throw the bottle away and go for the Sister. The Sister, Ah Kam and Ah Shap came to the room together.

The hearing was adjourned to the afternoon of January 10.

THE ROOSEVELT
GOLD PLANS.

In the fierce controversy which has arisen in the United States over the Roosevelt administration's gold policy, the opposition is certainly getting its full share of the debate. Whichever school of thought is right, open and unrestricted discussion of the country's most conflicting problem is likely to bring about a saner and more effective solution than would consideration of the difficulty from one angle alone. Both the sound money advocates and the so-called in-flationists have strong reasons to back up their arguments. Each has rallied to its side the submissions of professors of economics and other experts to prove that it is right. Each, we may assume, wants to find the best way out of the depression.

Difference between the sound money men and the inflationists lies in the difference between a strict adherence to the economic phase of the gold problem and a consideration of its political significance as well. For, in the broader, humanitarian sense, politics has much to do with the matter. While Wall Street looks upon the subject from a cold, matter of fact, dollars and cents viewpoint, President Roosevelt is forced to consider it not only in that light, but from the angle of the tradesman and the consumer as well. This naturally complicates the problem much more for the Government than it does for the financiers. Conceivably, if the sound money advocates had not arisen to criticise the Roosevelt policies, the more conservative phase of the discussion might have been overlooked.
Had there been a disposition to swallow all the President's nostrums without question, the country might by this time have experienced actual inflation, with all its accompanying dangers.
Reasoned analysis of the President's policies may therefore have a very real value. Mr.
Roosevelt's task is assuredly one of great magnitude, presenting almost innumerable pitfalls for the unwary. He is finding, also, that there are big interests to be fought, the latest opposition coming from the Federal Reserve Banks, which bitterly resent the decree placing control of their gold holdings under the Treasury. How his plans will work out in practice is a matter for speculation, but he is obviously the type of man who, having once made up his mind, is not easily deflected from the course which he sets. The next few months will be a crucial time for the President and his advisers.
Well-wishers will pray that he may succeed in the task to which he has put his hand.

NOTES OF THE DAYFATE OF LEAGUE

Those who watch the signs of the times in high politics are awaiting with keen interest to learn the results of Sir John Simon's visit to Rome. It is widely felt that the whole future of the League of Nations may depend on the talks between Signor Mussolini and Britain's Foreign Secretary. Lat-terly, there has been talk of nations preparing to "go off" the League as many have gone off gold, of a revival of the old balance of power in Europe with new groupings.
The League is said to be already valueless as a means of collective security, and many who genuinely sympathise with Geneva's ideals are calling loudly for a move to abandon the old order and to set about erecting some new form of League to take its place. Much of what is said on the League's deficiencies is unhappily true. Geneva attempted to bring pressure to bear upon Japan in the dispute with China and, so far as tangible results were concerned, failed. There followed a grave loss of prestige, which made it easier for Germany to withdraw from Geneva and will make it still easier for any other dissatisfied nation to do the same.

PRACTICAL AGE

That an institution at once so far-reaching and so experimental should sustain one or two major setbacks might not in another age have suggested ultimate failure.
But the present age is essentially a practical one. It must needs be so, for it has many changes and much confusion to cope with, and many new institutions to set in motion. It cannot afford to tinker with machinery which will not work. According to "realistic" thought, therefore, the League of Nations, having shown itself ineffective in certain supremely important issues, might be discarded and all the energies and resourcefulness of the age set to work on a new international machine. But with the League of Nations one is not dealing with a mere political expedient that may be easily changed or scrapped. One is dealing with an expression of the highest hopes, the most sacred ideals and the deepest convictions of humanity.
The expression of any great ideal does not stand or fall by a temporary setback, by defections or failures of individuals, or even of nations.

VALUABLE MACHINERY

For the moment the League may look far less attractive than "realistic" and resurgent nationalism. It is natural, perhaps, in an age that looks for change, to centre interest upon the drastic changes made on the realistic basis and to forget the slow, patient structural work in daily progress at Geneva and The Hague—not merely political, but judicial, economic, social and cultural, reaching into all phases of the life of the nations and welding them into this League idea that shall stand for the varying forms of unity of interest in all nations. If some of the nations, owing to political excitement and changes, are not yet ready to take share in this great organisation that has brought fifty-seven nations into a single membership, the ideal remains, and the machinery.

SPIRIT OF GENEVA

It is sometimes said that the League, after all, is no more than the nations that compose it, and that all the self-interest of the nations is merely reproduced at the Geneva conferences. Nothing could be more misleading. At Geneva there is far more than the constituent nations. The "spirit of Geneva" and its effect upon the delegates who enter its halls is one of the first things that impresses everyone who has attended its meetings. Even in the purely political aspect of Geneva, where nationalism necessarily is still much in evidence, something of the new spirit, assiduously developed by the Secretariat, is usually apparent, and in course of time will become more so. The work of drawing fifty-seven nations together cannot be lightly undone and done over again. Even if it were, the new form would incur the same attacks as the old and would be morally less well equipped to resist them.
It is the task of this generation to hold what has been set up—to modify where necessary, but always to hold, to keep its gaze fixed firmly on the ideal and to preserve for its successors, through all trials and setbacks, one of the greatest achievements the post-war age has to its credit.

HOW SCOTLAND YARD
FIGHTS CRIME

By HUGH BRADY

THIS daily recurring name,
"Scotland Yard," stirs up in the minds of most people visions of the romantic, perhaps sordid, story of crime hidden behind the walls of the great Embankment building.

In a sense they are right. But for the man in a hurry—the crime reporter, for instance—Scotland Yard is the home of lost causes.
It is only when a crime has entered the realms of history that it finds its way to the archives. When crime news is fresh it must be sought farther afield.

Eight hundred people are employed in Scotland Yard. And when I tell you that only about 1 in 5 of these is a policeman you are perhaps surprised.

You would be further surprised to learn that a far smaller proportion are detectives. Fiction writers have led you to believe that Scotland Yard is crammed with detectives, ready at any moment to take a hand in clearing up baffling mysteries. How different are the facts!

Civil Servants of both sexes abound in the huge eight-storied building, as also do uniformed officers, and it is only here and there you will meet a detective.
It is in a circumscribed space at Scotland Yard that the detective stands on his own ground.

There are close upon 1,000 members of the Criminal Investigation Department—all officially Scotland Yard detectives—but there are many who seldom visit the police headquarters. Their work lies with the 23 divisions of the Metropolitan Police.

Who works at Scotland Yard?
The Commissioner is there, so are his Assistant-Commissioners, and along the corridors of gloom
the visitor almost tip-toes past the various sections known to the initiated by mysterious hieroglyphics.

I once heard a facetious policeman say: "A stone thrown through a Scotland Yard window would always hit a Civil Servant."

There is certainly some truth in that statement. The amount of clerical work performed at Scotland Yard is prodigious, and it is only the expert who can draw the line of demarcation between policeman and Civil Servant.

Why the telephones are controlled at night by policemen and by Civil Servants during the day has always puzzled me. The telephone room contains direct lines from Buckingham Palace, Wellington Barracks, the House of Commons, the Director of Public Prosecutions Office, the Admiralty, and the War Office.

Civil Servants control the General Registry, into which mail, cables, and telegrams pour daily,
but the uniformed constables receive and despatch everything at Scotland Yard—Chief constables have Civil Service clerks, but superintendents are helped by policemen.

Some of the motor-drivers at the Yard are policemen, others are civilians; but many of the "Mystery Sections" are composed of detectives, uniformed men, and Civil Servants.

This is especially true of the Ideas Section, which sifts all kinds of suggestions.

The Pay Department at Scotland Yard is a huge section, and there are others dealing with printing, traffic, wireless, promotions, disciplinary boards, awards, recruiting, examinations, health, fingerprints, and criminal records, the staffs of which depart each evening at scheduled hours.

Visitors from everywhere think Scotland Yard is a show place.
Let me tell you it is not. Tom Mix, the film actor, gaily dressed in his cowboy clothes, once rode his white horse to call on the Commissioner. He was asked politely by a policeman to go away because he was causing an obstruction. And that was that.

Have you heard of the Black Museum, which contains all kinds of curious—criminal and otherwise? It is in the dungeons of Scotland Yard, and it is a rare privilege for anyone not connected with the police to be admitted.
There is nothing new under the sun, and there you would find (if admitted) relics of notorious criminals. Anything else? On second thoughts, yes; a sixty-years-old invention on somewhat similar lines to the robot controls of present-day London traffic—with green, amber, and red lights complete!

Scotland Yard, after all, in the public mind is the great institution that handles crime in all its aspects. So for the moment I must forget the people at Scotland Yard—the vast majority, who completely carry on their daily clerical and technical work.

On one floor are to be found the headquarters of "Central," that is the Criminal Investigation Department. Its total strength is 116, and this number includes a chief constable, five superintendents, and four chief-inspectors. Fifty officers belong to the Flying Squad, who almost invariably are afoot or in motor-cars seeking criminals.

This is the branch that burns
the midnight oil. Night or day there are detectives there who are ready to respond to calls from any part of the world. In the main, however, London's divisional detectives are not alarmists. A divisional crime brings the men from the local stations, and they work with the knowledge that the reserve men at Scotland Yard can help at any moment—with additional men, perhaps, or by fingerprints, photographs, or wireless descriptions of wanted men.

Any piece of writing about Scotland Yard would be incomplete without a reference to the famous "Back Hall." That is the way into Scotland Yard when the main entrance is closed. A late caller is always seen first by the "Back Hall" inspector, a man of encyclopaedic police knowledge, backed by a staff of constables,
and it is these men who "carry on" in the stillness of the night.

The reserve detectives are on duty upstairs. In cases of urgency the "Back Hall" inspector can speak on the telephone to any of the staff—from Lord Trenchard downwards. The light in his office shines brightly through an ocean of gloom.

I have told you that there are only 116 detectives in the Central Branch at Scotland Yard. Near by—separated by a bridge in the quadrangle—is Scotland House,
the home of the Special Branch;
strength, 132.

This is the branch that caught spies during the war, watches foreign revolutionaries, keeps its eye on the wild dreamers of new worlds. All its men are linguists and well travelled; their secrets are the nation's.

"And while he is laughing at the story about the Scotsman you're getting out your samples and order blanks."

The Very Idea!MULTIPLICATION

By Eddie Kelly XXX

WE have just heard about a new Society that will make you rich for the rest of your life.

All you've got to do is join the Multiplication Table.

No more work, no more worry, nothing but wait for the commissions to roll in.

It's this way.

All you've got to do is to send a paltry ten bucks to the Society and you become a Life Member.

Now you're off. Back will come a consignment of little books about multiplication, which you have to sell at ten bucks a time.

The first three you sell are buckshee, because you don't rake in any commission. But once you find the fourth mug the money commences to pour in. Out of No. 4's ten dollars you rake in $7.50. Now, No. 4, to save his money, has to get to work.

The first three he rakes in are no good to him, but they're worth $5 to you, because you're indirectly responsible for selling them.

And you've only begun. Each of these three members have to bag three new 'uns each before they start to rake in the skeels, but you still draw your bit of aqueque. When they get their three mugs they can start.

Girls, it's a cinch. We ask you?
Why, in less than a year, you could earn $10,000 if you sold every citizen in Hongkong. We've often done worse than this out at Fanning or Happy Valley.

The population of Hongkong is about 900,000, but consider the potentialities of the scheme elsewhere. Fancy hopping in among China's 400,000,000. (20,000 deduction to allow for depreciation in the Fukien war), or India's 35,000,000 (less 11 lost owing to Jardine and body-line), or even Russia's paltry 100,000,000. Why, there's no reason why you couldn't clean up ten or twenty bucks in no time.

And ten or twenty bucks is ten or twenty bucks these days.

Anyone interested in the scheme can send their ten bucks along to us, c/o this office.

The odds are 1,000,000 to one that it won't go to the promoters of the scheme. We know our multiplication table.

CUMSHAW

A well known friend of ours entered the Hongkong Hotel with a ten cent bit, a silver dollar, and three one cents in his pocket. He asked for a Resch's beer, and after quaffing it, paid with the dollar, adding the small change as cum-shaw. What did he get in return?
ANSWER: A thick car (the dollar was chopped).

The Worm Through the Ages

When Sir Worm, Crusader, is safely buckled up in armour, he opens vizzor and finds courage to tell wife he is going on crusade for five years to fight Saracens.

Oh, so after giving worm best years of her life worm is going to leave wife for five years while worm goes gallivanting off on crusades, is he?

That is nice way to treat hard-working wife who has worked fingers to bone to make worm's home comfortable.

Castle with 100 rooms and 500 men-at-arms, cooks, scullions and grooms not good enough for pampered worm who is merely finding excuse to go abroad with witty worm friends.

And if worm thinks he is going to frighten Saracens in his silly tin-pot armour and foolish plume
he is greatly mistaken.
Saracens will roar with laughter
when they see worm galloping about, waving lance like little boy playing at soldiers.

But probably cunning, ex-mad worm has no intention of fighting Saracens. More likely he is going all the way to Palestine, or where Saracens live, to oggle shamoless blonde princess. If that is worm's intention he had better look out, as Saracens have short shriff with Christian worms who oggle Saracen women.

Probably worm will lose head, and wife will be left with castle on hands and end days as beggar. As dinner is ready worm had better take off silly armour and stop showing off.

Sir Worm calls pages to remove armour and decides to go on next crusade.

LAUNCH AND MOTOR-BOAT SUNK IN HARBOUR

ARMY BOAT
RAMMED
CAPSIZINGANOTHER ACCIDENT IN NAVAL ANCHORAGE

Two small vessels were sunk in Hongkong waters during the night.

The military launch "Tommy Atkins" was rammed and sunk at about 8.30 p.m. last night by the Kongmun steamer, Kwong Pook Cheong, when returning from Tai Nam Camp, Castle Peak, towing a lighter.

The launch left Castle Peak at about 6.30 and when near the Ma Wan Light was struck amidships by the Kwong Pook Cheong, a vessel of 538 tons. She sank almost immediately, her crew scrambling aboard the lighter, where they awaited the arrival of a police launch, which towed the lighter back to Hongkong.

The "Tommy Atkins" is stated to be lying in about 100 feet of water near the Ma Wan Light bearing S.E. one cable. It is feared that it will not be possible to salvage her. The damage to the river steamer has not yet been estimated.

MOTORBOAT LOST.

The coxswain of the motor boat Hop Sang, Leung Kau, and a Japanese passenger he was taking to Mongkok also came in for an involuntary ducking when the motor boat was rammed and sunk in collision with the s.s. Kwai Sang.

According to the story of the coxswain he left Wanchai at about 7 o'clock with a passenger for Mongkok and when near the No. 1 Buoy in the Naval Anchorage his engine stopped. He tried to effect repairs and while doing so noticed the Kwai Sang approaching abeam on the port side. The Kwai Sang gave no signal and struck the motor boat on her port quarter. The Hop Sang gave a list to starboard and sank within three minutes. The Kwai Sang dropped a lifebuoy but was some distance away before she could pull up. The coxswain and his passenger were later picked up and taken to Hongkong.

THREE-DECKER
TARIFFSIR W. ALEXANDER'S
PLAN

A "three-decker" tariff system was advocated by Brigadier-General Sir William Alexander, M.P., President of the National Union of Manufacturers, at the annual dinner of the Union at the May Fair Hotel.

Sir William suggested that the first step was to revise the most-favoured-nation clause, and then to make full use of their bargaining power.

"It implies a tariff of what is known as the 'three-decker' type; the lowest tier for Empire countries, the middle tier for those countries which give us something, and the highest tier for those foreign countries which give us nothing."

Sir Henry Page Croft, M.P., said trade agreements would never be profitable so long as they were ruled by the most-favoured-nation clause.

LARGER TYPE OF
SPORTING FISHSALMON-TROUT BREEDING EXPERIMENT

Can salmon and trout be crossed, and what kind of fish will result? An experiment is to be tried at hatcheries at Littlecote, near Hungerford, Wiltshire, in an attempt to produce a game fish larger than trout, but less devoted to the sea than salmon.

Mr. H. J. Skinner, fishery keeper to Sir Ernest Wills, has been experimenting there for four years on crossing brown trout with rainbow trout, in order to breed a larger type of fish. A chance for a more ambitious attempt has now offered itself.

About Christmas time Mr. Skinner will be netting spawning salmon on a private estate in Hampshire for Southampton University College, who are carrying out important experiments on the River Avon. He will take breeding male trout with him from Littlecote to the Avon, and cross them with noted female salmon. He hopes also to take home with him a male salmon for further hybridizing.

ROOSEVELT'S SPEECH

of unemployment, including large schemes of public works.

GOLD POLICY.

The President explained his gold policy as having two objectives, the strengthening of the whole financial structure and the development of a medium of exchange which would not vary much in its purchasing and debasing power.

He expressed intention of entering upon stabilisation discussions based on permanent world-wide objectives, but said that careful investigations had proved that many of America's sister nations were not ready.

WALL STREET DISAPPOINTED.

Wall Street is disappointed by the omission from rather than by the contents of President Roosevelt's speech to Congress. It induced a brief selling flurry on the Stock Exchange.

The newspapers appear to be equally dissatisfied. The Evening Sun, whose comment is typical, asserts that the speech did not contain a single concrete evidence of the progress or otherwise of the recovery programme.—Reuters.

G. W. R.
CHAIRMANLORD CHURCHILL'S
DEATH

London, Jan. 3. Viscount Churchill, who for 25 years has been Chairman of the Great Western Railway, died today, aged 69, from pneumonia, after a brief illness.

The first holder of the title, which was created in 1902, he was a grandson of the late Queen Victoria.

As a youth Viscount Churchill was Page of Honour to Queen Victoria. Then he passed into the Coldstream Guards, resigning his commission in 1889. He acted as Lord Chamberlain at the Coronation of King Edward VII and as Master of the Robes at the Coronation of King George V. In politics he was a conservative, being one of the whips in the House of Lords. In addition to his chairmanship of the Great Western Railway he was chairman of its subsidiary undertakings, the Fishguard and Rosslare Railways and Harbours and the Cork City Railways companies, besides being a member of the committee of the Grand Junction Canal Company. He was also Chairman of the British Overseas Bank and a Director of the P. and O. and B.I. Steamship Companies.

The heir to the title is the Hon. Victor Alexander Spencer, who has written largely on art and literature and who was mentioned in despatches during his service in the Great War.—British Wireless.

LIBEL ON A POSTER
MESSRS. W. H. SMITH
LOSE APPEAL

The Court of Appeal dismissed the appeal by Messrs. W. H. Smith and Son against the jury's award and judgment for £3,000 damages against them in the libel action brought by the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

The Company alleged that Messrs. Smith circulated a newspaper poster bearing the words "More Grave Sun Life Disclosures."

Lord Justice Scrutton, in his judgment, said that there was ample evidence that Messrs. Smith were negligent in not knowing that the poster or the newspaper contained a libel.

Though, at their head office, Messrs. Smith might be compelled to send out posters and newspapers without knowing what was in them, the jury might think they were carelessly carrying on business if their bookstall manager who did see the posters which might be libellous, did not exercise his discretion and consult the head office in any doubtful case before he exhibited a poster.

"PRIVILEGE" PLEADED
AGAINMR. JUSTICE AVORY'S
ANSWER

A detective-sergeant who was called as a witness before Mr. Justice Avory, in the King's Bench Division, was asked to produce his diary and notes.

"I cannot produce them without directions," he declared.

"And I give them," said Mr. Justice Avory.

The documents were promptly produced.

An official from the Ministry of Labour produced some documents which Mr. D. N. Pritt, K.C., desired to have left in the Court. "I cannot order you to leave them," he said to the witness.

"But I can and I do," said the Judge.

One case of diphtheria with one death, four cases of typhoid with one death (one imported), two cases of meningitis with one death, one case of puerperal fever with one death, and 47 deaths from tuberculosis were reported to the local health authorities last week. On Tuesday one case of meningitis was also reported.

Contestants in the Open Contract Bridge Tournament reminded that the third round will be played at the Sports Club on Friday 6th instant, at 5.30 p.m. In the Consolation Tournament, competitors are reminded that the third round will be played at the Sports Club on the same day.

The New Territories Agricultural Show is to be opened on Saturday at 2.30 p.m. The venue is Shek Wu Shing, which is quite close to the Sheungshui railway station. A visit to the show will provide an excellent opportunity of spending an enjoyable afternoon. There is a convenient train leaving Kowloon at 12.12 p.m., arriving at Sheungshui in ample time for the opening ceremony.

SQUARE"

INTERPORT TRIAL ONLY EMPHASISES BIG PROBLEM

LEUNG USELESS AS A WING HALF

ALLEN AND MORRISON SHOULD BE EARMARKED: TAY'S PROMISING FORM

(By "Veritas").

YESTERDAY'S Interport trial did little but to emphasise that it will be necessary to conduct more than two such matches before the final selection of the team for Shanghai can be made.

It would, perhaps, be foolish to attempt to draw hard and fast conclusions before next Monday's game has been played; but the rather provoking fact remains that yesterday's trial afforded comparatively no assistance to the selectors.

The absence of the Gosano brothers was most unfortunate, completely upsetting, as it did, the Blues team, which could not as a result, be regarded as anything like a possible Interport XI.

DEFENCES ON TOP

Defences created the deepest impression, especially the Allen-Morrison formation. They at least played well enough to be earmarked as possible visitors to Shanghai. Allen shone in all his glory against the Ridley-Bickford wing, and was never at a loss. He was again by far the most dangerous attacking flank of the Blues, and because of this, and the manner in which he accomplished the task of subduing it, he can almost be regarded as a natural selection.

I imagine it will eventually boil down to whether he shall have A. V. Gosano or Morrison as partner.

But this department has never offered any deep problem. We have at least four full backs of Interport standard in local football just now. The selectors' real trouble will be found in picking the half back line.

PIVOTAL OR NOWHERE

I am firmly convinced, particularly after his display yesterday, that it is of no use putting Leung Wing-chui at wing half. I would go further and suggest that it would be detrimental to the team. It is useless contemplating Leung's brilliant displays at centre-half and put him on the flanks because of them. Once there he is like a fish out of water.

That he resents the restricted area in which to operate is palpably obvious; that such restriction wholly affects his game is also as plain as day-light. Leung has either to occupy the pivotal berth, or none at all. Unhappily this seems the only alternative.

Cork, Podmore and Channing, normally each one a centre-half, adapted themselves fairly well to the flank positions. Channing fell away in the second half, but earlier on he had Yeung Shui-yei swell under control. Podmore had to adopt bustling tactics to subdue the speedy and unorthodox Blake, and beyond his breaking-up work, the Borderers man was not seen to tremendous advantage.

Cork was the best wing half on the field, and it would be interesting to see if he could operate as successfully on the left as on the right. If so his claims would be very strong.

TAY SPOILS HIMSELF

Neither Beltrao nor Pardoe could be held up as a shining light. The Artillery skipper is nowhere near to capturing his form of a year ago, and Beltrao has an unfortunate tendency of roaming, thereby finding himself continually out-positioned.

On the whole the half backs offered a difficult and complex study.

If Tay Qua-tong hadn't allowed his success in tricky footwork to go to his head, and in the second half to have become so selfish, one would have felt it necessary to proclaim him as the obvious man for the inside right berth. But it is team work all the time which is needed in an Interport match, and Tay will have to recognise that if he is to make the grade.

Beyond this one must concede that Tay gave a delightful exhibition. He created openings for every member of the Whites quintette. In the second half he and Yeung Shui-yei played together with perfect understanding, and the young Singapore player was for ever endeavouring to put Elliott through.

As an attack the Whites forward line enjoyed rather more limelight than their opposite numbers. Elliott's leadership was a queer mixture. He was intelligently constructive when moving the ball down field, but less successful in front of goal. Equally so must it be acknowledged, he was thoroughly luckless. Several times he banged in great shots, which were either finely saved by Combey, or they just missed the objective.

Ernest Strange was again rather individualistic, but there is no denying that even in this type of game, he is a fine attacker. Speed is an enormous factor in his favour, and give him an opportunity to shoot and one can always reasonably expect a goal.

THE BETTER COMBINATION

Despite the neat combination of Ridley and Bickford yesterday, I still believe that Strange and Bickford are a better pair, and that they are even to be preferred to Ridley and Hocquard.

Bickford has somewhat stronger claims for the left wing berth than Hocquard because he is capable of coming through a difficult position on his own with colours flying. Hocquard is essentially reliant on his partner providing the opening. Hocquard will have an opportunity of making me eat my words on Monday next.

It is doubtful whether the selectors came any nearer to filling the centre-forward position. Elliott was in some respects, more impressive than Ho Ka-keung, and his more energetic methods might make him preferable to Howe. For myself I feel that Dave Leonard is the man for the job, but here again we shall have to wait until after Monday.

Tam Kong-pak, given Shepperd as a partner, and this after operating on his own for the first ten minutes, was hardly offered a fair trial. He accomplished quite a lot of good spade work, but always found Morrison the final and conclusive stumbling block. I would like to see Ward and Gosano against Morrison, or A. V. Gosano, and I think it is very probable the Interport right wing would be found.

GOOD GOALKEEPERS BOTH

The exchanges yesterday were interesting, but lack of goals robbed the game of excitement. Both Wong Wing and Combey figured prominently in saving some red hot shots, and it is conceivable that the Interport custodianship will rest between these two, with Wong Wing as the more likely nominee.

The first half was blank, although both goals were raided in turn and experienced narrow escapes. One glaring fault to be seen on both sides was the inability of the inside forwards to keep up with the ball, with the result that numbers of centres were begging.

It was not until the second stage was well advanced that Ernest Strange beat Combey and he followed this up two minutes later with a dandy shot which again found the mark.

The Blues retaliated and Ridley beat the unsighted Wong Wing in a very bad light, whilst Ho Ka-keung should have levelled the scores in the last minutes, but was wide.

Teams:—

and Morrison; Cork, Beltrao and Channing; Yeung Shui-yei, Tay Qua-tong, Elliott, E. Strange and Blake.

Blues:—Combey; D. Leonard and S. Strange; Podmore, Pardoe and Leung Wing-chui; Shepperd, Tam Kong-pak, Ho Ka-keung, Ridley and Bickford.

GREAT DISPLAY OF GOALKEEPING

Field, keeping goal for the Royal Marines of the Cumberland, played one of his best games of the season to prevent the Engine Room of the Cumberland from scoring more than one goal yesterday, when the teams met in a hockey match.

No score at half time gave a true indication of the tenacious fight put up by the Marines. Admittedly the Marines backs put in some fine stickplay, but Field in goal proved the unpassable barrier.

The second half saw a lucky shot from a melee in front of the Marine's goalmouth, give the Engine Room their winning lead. Marines:—Field; Mills, Turner; Barton, Welsh, O'Hara; Wisdom, Sanderson, Timus, Brown, Weeks. Engine Room:—Tritton; J. Brown, Rush; Kefford, Lt. Comdr. Goddard; Crooks, Ilford, Russel, Burroughs, Gill, Lt. Richards.

The United States hockey team met England at Merton Abbey last month, and this picture shows England scoring their second goal, with Miss F. Elliott of U.S. making a tremendous but vain effort to save. (Pia net News).

Picking The Right Ladies Hockey Team

SUGGESTED XI TO OPPOSE AUSSIES

(By "R.H.B.")

The visit of the Australian Ladies touring hockey team can be looked forward to as marking another important milestone in the history of the game among the ladies of Hongkong. In itself, it will be a unique occasion and for the local eleven a beneficial experience.

Local trial matches have commenced and the selectors have been casting a keen eye on the displays of each player. To my mind, the greatest difficulty facing the selectors is the choice of the forward line. For the defence there is an ample amount of talent available.

This point I know has been raised before, but it is necessary to state once more that equal representation of each team is not essential. It is necessary that the best player for each end every position be chosen.

My team would be as follows:—
—R. Rose (St. Andrew's); E. M. Gray (Hongkong Ladies); A. Fowler (Y. Ladies); M. L. W. Bryson (C. B. A. Ladies); B. M. Pope (Hongkong Ladies); M. Wallace (Hongkong Ladies); E. Selby (Hongkong Ladies); J. Churchill (Hongkong Ladies); M. Woolley (St. Andrew's); A. Alves (Recrolo) and O. Brown (Y. Ladies).

HINTS TO UMPIRES

By "Bully-Off"

Be quick and decisive with your decisions during the first ten or fifteen minutes of the game and you will soon get the game in hand. Penalise any attempt towards dangerous hitting and rough play and the players will soon realise that you are there to take charge of a game and not permit a rough and tumble.

The most enjoyable games are those which need the least whistle so keep it down to the minimum. Where an unintentional offence gains no advantage allow it to pass unchecked. But let the player know you have noticed it and that although he has been let off he will be punished if the offence is repeated.

The Lincolns, at the time of writing have not selected their team, but unless Heath is fit, it is not likely to be changed from that which rather lurches last week. I think we can expect to see the following line-up:

Deacon
Rowden
Edmondson
Dudley
Cork
Bett
Baldry
McGuinness
Higgins
Ridley
Hocquard

The South China line-up is always doubtful up to the last minutes, and because of this one can only surmise the probable team. They are looking forwards to the return of Fung King-cheung to counteract the enforced absence of Wong Mee-shun, and it is not unlikely that with the idea of strengthening the half back line Li Tin-sang will return. If so, the following will probably be seen in action.

Wong Wing
Li Tin-sang
Lau Mau
Leung In-chun
Leung Wing-chui
Lee Kwok-wai
Yeung Shui-yei
Tam Kong-pak
Fung King-cheung
Pau Ka-ping
Tay Qua-tong

CHINESE TO WIN.

With such a line-up South China can be expected to just about pull it off. I wouldn't say the Lincolns were out and out lucky to garner both points from the earlier encounter, but I certainly think that South China were not at their best, and that on their own pastures this Sunday they will serve up a somewhat different display. The lively Higgins and the subtle Ridley will again be the big thorns in the Chinese defence, whilst the attack has the problem of overcoming the dour soldiers' half back line.

These struggles in themselves should be sufficient to guarantee some exceptionally fine and ex-

SOUTH CHINA OR THE LINCOLNS?

CHAMPIONSHIP MAY WELL DEPEND ON THE RESULT

(By "Veritas").

NOT even the Junior Shield matches can divert attention from the great football match at Caroline Hill on Sunday when the Lincolns, present leaders of the first division, meet South China, formidable challenger, and present holders of the championship, in their return encounter.

ANY repetition of the unfortunate incidents which marred the Sookunpoo match will be wholly deplorable. There is no reason, and therefore no excuse for such conduct. Spectators (and they will probably form a record crowd) will visit the South China arena to see football worthy of two such fine teams and it will mean wilful waywardness if anything, but the best traditions are upheld.

INTERESTED PARTIES.

Three other teams will be directly interested in the result—the Borderers, Navy and St. Joseph's. But I fear the Navy's interest will wane after this week, for many of the team will be leaving for the southern cruise on the 9th, and with them all hopes for league honours.

The Borderers and St. Joseph's appear to have comparatively easy tasks. The former entertain the Athletic on Sunday, and I can't see them losing, whilst the Saints make the trip across the harbour to be received by the Recrolo. A win for South China, Borderers and St. Joseph's is going to make the solution to the championship problem as complicated as that of international disarmament.

On the other hand the Lincolns have a splendid opportunity of putting South China practically out of the race. Sunday's match carries for them a big task and what to other interested parties will mean a heavy responsibility.

JUNIOR SHIELD

Interesting Array of Matches

The draw for the Junior shield is exceedingly interesting, and games above the usual standard associated with first round ties should materialise.

If the Royal Artillery hadn't been unlucky as to run up a second division I would have been prepared to make them a quiet tip for the Shield.

The Gunners have sorted together a very useful side: as a team they can give the seniors points. It is not even unreasonable to imagine them beating South China at Caroline Hill. Certainly the Artillery play the right type of football for cup-ties, and if they can establish an early lead their entry into the second round is quite feasible.

The Borderers appear good enough to pass on safely, but the fact must not be lost sight of that the Young Indians last week defeated the Athletic, and on their day are capable of upsetting the best teams in the junior divisions. The Navy cannot afford another lapse as they suffered against the Artillery last week if they are to beat the Athletic. The Lincolns and South China "B", however, should win comfortably.

H.M.S. Whitehall Collapse Against Veteran

The Veteran convincingly beat the Whitehall in an Eighth Flotilla Hockey League match yesterday afternoon at King's Park by seven goals to one.

In the first half the exchanges were fast, and, at times, the players revealed exceptionally good form, especially Hind and Fossey, who broke up some determined attacks.

To illustrate the good fight put up by the Whitehall against a better team, the Veteran only led by one nil at half time. But the losers could not keep up the pace and collapsed in the second half.

In the second half Rimmer scored four goals, while Bellia, Mid. Norman, and Morley each added one for the Veteran.

CHINA FLEET BOXING PRELIMINARIES

ENTERTAINING FIGHTS

CUMBERLAND NOMINEES HAVE TO SCRATCH

The preliminaries to the Semi-Finals and Finals of the China Fleet Boxing Championships took place last night in the Old Canteen Theatre.

The first fight between Boy Prince of the Berwick and St. Brittain of the Destroyers, showed the "Boy" at his best, and he was superior in every move. St. Brittain instead of covering up, allowed himself to take punishment, waiting for the opportunity to land one of his chance blows for a K.O.

Owing to illness the Cumberland nominees had to cancel their entries at the last minute, and as a result Ord. Feldwick gained a walk-over against Ord. Walla, while A. B. Barber of the Suffolk had a walk over from Boy Jones.

The fourth fight was the best of the evening, both men giving of their best and apparently determined to settle the issue as soon as possible. From the sound of the gong, both St. King and St. Read were willing to mix their blows, with the result an excellent bout was seen. St. King was given the decision on points.

The fifth and last fight of the evening was between Tel. McDonald and St. Cocoran. Both boxers in the first two rounds were rather on the careful side, their blows having no power behind them, but they were remarkably quick and clever. Tel. McDonald was given the points.

The following are the points in the China Fleet Boxing Championships. Berwick are leading the Fleet with 9 points, while Kent come second with 6 points. The rest are Suffolk 4 pts, D.F. 4 pts, Medway 2 pts, Eagle 2 pts, Cumberland and S/S each no points.

PONY TRAINING TIMES

SOLDIER OF CHINA IMPRESSES IN MEDIUM DISTANCE GALLOP

After the initial weeks of slow training, some of the Derby griffins for the 1934 season are now producing fast gallops, as witnessed by the improved times taken at Happy Valley yesterday morning. Soldier of China was impressive in a mile and a quarter run, doing the full distance in 2.58, with a satisfactory last quarter of 31 seconds. Prima Donna, which was kept over from the previous season, and Spinaway together with Sandy Bay and Racing Pluck also galloped in beautiful manner, and should be watched in their subsequent appearances.

Among the Australian ponies, Able Amazon, Bag Tor, Mountain Cat and Princess Angelina all did their work with ease and should prove to be amongst the winners in the next annual meeting.

The ponies were galloped on the sand course. The list of griffins trained appears below:

CHINA FLEET FOOTBALL

LEWIS SCORES DECIDER

Playing in the Second Division of the China Fleet Football League yesterday afternoon at the Valley, the Wren defeated the Whitshed by one goal to nil, after there being no score at half time.

It was an excellent encounter, both teams indulging in clean fast football. Head in goal for the Wren and Pearson for the Whitshed played well, and it was no fault of Pearson that the ball found its way into the net.

Bookless played his usual good game for the Whitshed, being dangerous every time the ball was up in the Wren's half.

The defence of the Wren, in Matheun and Symonds, was definitely good, both showing a complete understanding of each other's play, and covering well.

The second half saw the Wren score through Lewis during one of their visits, this deciding the issue.

The following lined out under P. O. Holding of the Keppel.

H.M.S. Wren:—Head; Matheun, Symonds, Scandrett, Davis, Kink, McAtee; Lewis, Timberlake, Griffin, Woods.

H.M.S. Whitshed:—Pearson, Strudwick, Edwards, Chadwick, Suter, Bryan, Gambin, Bookless, Handford, Walker, Roberts.

BERWICK RIGHT ON TOP

And Easily Defeat Cumberland

The Berwick overwhelmed the Cumberland by three goals to one at the Valley yesterday afternoon in a third division game.

From the start the Berwick assumed command of the game, keeping the play in the Cumberland's half most of the time. On one occasion the Cumberland did manage to break through and score but this was the only liberty the Berwick allowed them to take.

FRIENDLY MATCH.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney
Solution to Previous Contract Problem

If variety is the spice of life, then freck hands are the spice of bridge. Hands of regular distribution are in the great majority, and their proper handling is a fundamental part of one's game. Nevertheless, the freck hands produce most of the thrills, and a bit of good judgment or good luck in handling such distribution will be remembered for many days.

To-day's hand shows that opposing high card strength sometimes may be offset by favourable distribution and brilliant strategy.

South's bidding may have been a little too bold in view of his partner's third hand opening, but freck hands call for aggressive bidding and North was equal to the occasion.

The Play

East cashed his king and ace of clubs and then led the king of diamonds, which North ruffed. The declarer could see that, with a successful spade finesse, and a break in trump, his contract was assured. If the spade finesse should lose, so would the contract, while a 4-1 split in trump would not necessarily be fatal. North elected to try the spade finesse first, and, when the jack held the first trick, a diamond was returned and ruffed in his own hand. Another spade was led, the king being covered by the ace, and dummy's last club was ruffed in the North hand.

Declarer then led the king of hearts, which East won with the ace, and returned a club, West wisely refusing to trump.

North trumped, led the queen of hearts, and then put dummy in the lead with the queen of spades. West must ruff whatever is led from dummy, and North will over-ruff, making the last two tricks and his contract.

Notice that the declarer had to reduce his trump holding by ruffing four times, so that he might put the lead into dummy at the eleventh trick, and this is the only way he could avoid losing two heart tricks.

Today's Contract Problem

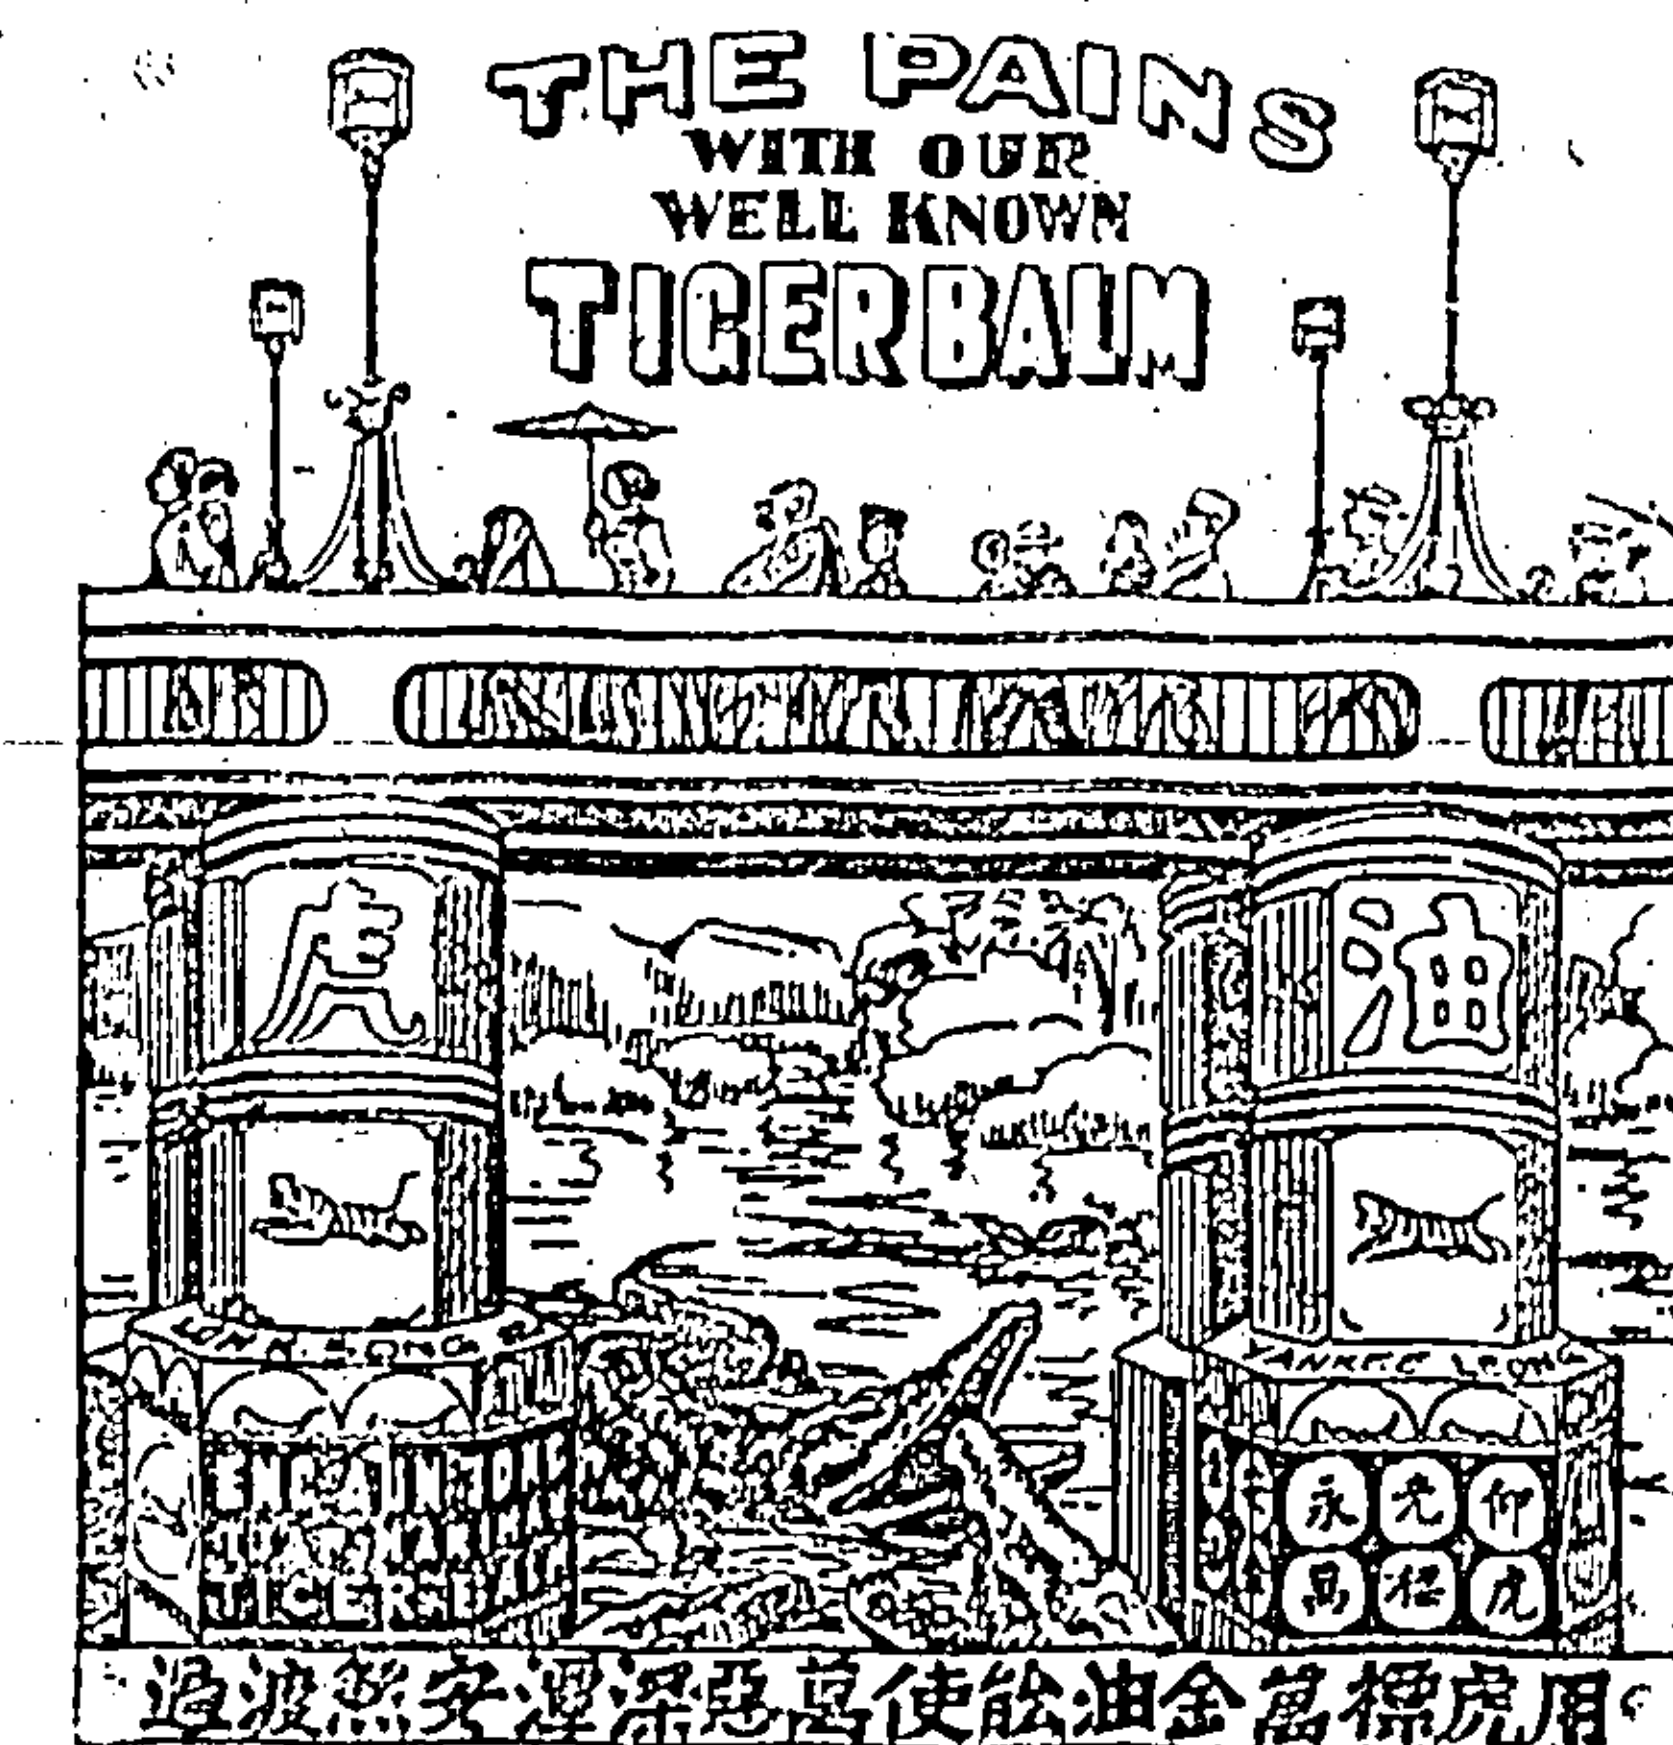

South has the contract, here, for six hearts, and West leads the four of diamonds. It looks as though South must lose a diamond and a spade. What play, however, will give him the contract?

You Cannot Avoid Colds But You Can Avoid Coughs!

In theatres, cinemas, dance halls and at sporting events, as well as in trams, buses and trains, we are continually exposed to the risk of catching colds, coughs, and throat affections. Respiroids, the new inhalant lozenges, provide an effective barrier against coughs and colds, and minimize the risk of infection. They are pleasant to take, and are so designed that their curative elements are conveyed immediately to the nasal passages, throat and lungs, where the risk of infection is greatest. Carry them with you; they are convenient for the pocket, and be prepared for their immediate use when you encounter a crowd. Respiroids are obtainable from medicine vendors everywhere, or direct at $1.20 per bottle post free, from The Williams Medicine Co., 451, Kiangso Road, Shanghai.

RESTORATION OF THE MANCHUS.

BRITISH PAPER'S
COMMENT

London, Jan. 3.
A deep hostility of Chinese feeling towards any understanding between the Nanking Government and Japan, led to the revolt in Fukien and has weakened General Chiang Kai-shek's position.
declares the Manchester Guardian
in an editorial to-day, outspokenly commenting on the recent political developments in the Far Eastern arena. The Guardian particularly stresses the significance of the report that Mr. Henry Pu Yi will be crowned Emperor of Manchukuo.

Japan, continues the Guardian, finishing negotiations with the Chinese Government as deadly as direct assault, is collecting her immediate profits in the shape of further influence in Mongolia and she has her eye upon the more remote gains which may arise from the fighting in Fukien.

The restoration of a Manchu emperor in Peking has always been a possibility, and recent events have brought it nearer.

A coronation in March may be meant as an induction of this final scene, the newspaper concludes.

FRENCH GESTURE

FRIENDLY ATTITUDE TOWARDS GERMANY

London, Jan. 3.
A French aide memoire was handed to Herr Kaizer yesterday.
A resume of the contents of this document has been communicated to the British Government and it is expected the full text will be received shortly. It is understood that it reveals an extremely conciliatory attitude on the part of France and is couched in the most friendly terms.

The French action is regarded by newspapers as importing a fresh element into the Disarmament discussions and Rome correspondents suggest that it will receive the most careful examination in the Mussolini-Simon discussion to-day.

The Daily Telegraph's Rome correspondent says on one vital point Mussolini supports France, for he believes that if Germany's present demands are satisfied the result will be not Disarmament but Rearmament.—*British Wire-

ROAD TRAFFIC SIGNS.

NEW BRITISH REGULATION ISSUED

London, Jan. 3.
All road traffic signs throughout Britain are to be standardized, as a result of the new regulations which have now come into force, based on the recommendations of the Departmental Committee.
Erection of signs which do not conform to the regulations is illegal. The regulations definitively provide that warning signs must be used only where they are urgently needed. This however does not apply to the new sign

"Major Road Ahead," which is suggested should be used freely.
It is anticipated that the general adoption of the new approved signs, and, in particular, of the "Major Road Ahead" sign, will lead to greater safety on roads.

London, Jan. 4.
One hundred and thirty-two miners were entombed in a disastrous explosion at a mine in Duchcov, Bohemia, yesterday.

Frantic efforts have been going on for several hours in attempts to effect a rescue of the miners, but hope is gradually being abandoned.

Rescue-workers have recovered six bodies hitherto.

The cause of the disaster cannot yet be ascertained. An explosion occurred, which may have been due to fire-damp or to dynamite used for blasting.—Reuter.

Baron von Fritsch has been appointed Chief of the Army Command, in succession to General von Hammerstein.

General von Fritsch was on the General Staff during the war. He became Major-General in November, 1930, when he was given command of the First Artillery Division.

General von Hammerstein took over the post of commander-in-chief in November, 1930, and has been a prominent figure in the Reichswehr since the Armistice. There has always been some doubt regarding his attitude towards the Fascist policy of packing the army with anti-Republicans.—Reuter.

GRAVE C.E.R. CRISIS

RAILWAY MAY CEASE

COAL SUPPLY
OBSTRUCTION

Harbin, Jan. 4.
A grave crisis now faces the Chinese Eastern Railway, which may be compelled to suspend its services unless agreement is reached for the purchase of coal from the Siberian mines.

The possibility of the Railway ceasing to function has already created a tense situation, which has been aggravated by the publication of the acrimonious correspondence between Mr. Li Shao-ken, of the Manchukuo Foreign Office, and M. Bandura, Soviet Vice-President of the Railway.

Meanwhile the local press, Chambers of Commerce and merchants, backed by Manchukuo officials, are busily agitating for revision of the Railway's freight charges.—Reuter.

FRENCH ADD TO QUOTA LIST

TRADE BARGAINING WEAPON

IMPORTERS
DUMBFOUNDED

Paris, Jan. 3.
Importers of British goods are dumbfounded by the action of the French Government in reducing the existing quota by seventy-five per cent. and subjecting 134 new categories of goods to the quota system as from January 1.

The surprise is greater as it follows so closely upon the abolition of the exchange surtax at the request of the British Government.

The new list of quotas includes machinery, steel cutlery, motor-cars, motor-cycles, tin-plate, rubber goods, woollen cloth, hosiery and sporting implements.

It is understood that the quota changes are designed primarily to give France a bargaining weapon in the trade negotiations to be undertaken with different countries, notably Britain and Germany.

A secondary consideration is the protection of French industry, particularly against German competition.

It is understood that provisional arrangements have been made for Anglo-French trade negotiations at the end of February.—Reuter.

BY WIFE OF LOCAL BARRISTER

EARLY HITCH IN PRESENTATION

The first petition for divorce presented in Hongkong was filed yesterday by Mrs. Dorothy Soares, wife of Mr. Alfredo Maria de Lourdes Soares, practising barrister-at-law.

Infidelity is put forward as one of the main grounds of the petition.

Respondent is at the moment in Shanghai.

Mrs. Soares is an Englishwoman. The couple were married some years ago when respondent was at Cambridge. Mrs. Soares is at present in Singapore.

Her husband practised at Singapore and Hongkong before removing to Shanghai some months ago. Whilst here Mrs. Soares was very popular and was regularly seen at social events.

Messrs. Lo and Lo are acting for petitioner, who attempted to institute proceedings some weeks ago. The papers, however, did not conform to the special requirements of the Ordinance and new papers had to be sent to Singapore for signature.

This is the first petition filed under the new Divorce Ordinance which came into force in November.

SAVING OF OVER TWO MILES

Work is to commence in the near future on the widening of Magazine Gap Road, between May Road and Stubbs Road, in order to make it available for motor traffic. When the scheme is completed, the road will have a width of approximately 20 feet.

The matter is as yet only in its preliminary stages, but tenders are now being called for. The scheme, when completed will fill a long-felt need, for not only will it relieve the congestion of motor traffic in Queen's Road East but will greatly facilitate motor access between the city and the higher levels.

At present, vehicular traffic to the Peak has to proceed along Queen's Road East and Wanchai to Magazine Gap via Stubbs Road, a distance of approximately four miles. With the opening up of Magazine Gap Road to motor traffic, there will be a saving of about two and a quarter miles, the approximate distance being only one and three-quarter miles.

ADMIRAL'S SON WEDDED

TO MISS HOLME-SUMNER

TO-DAY'S SOCIAL EVENT

One of the outstanding social events of the season was the wedding at St. John's Cathedral this afternoon of Lieut. Richard Christopher John Dreyer, R.N., of H.M.S. Borwick, eldest son of H.E. Admiral Sir Frederic C. Dreyer, Commander-in-Chief of the China Squadron, and Lady Dreyer, to Miss Marjorie Jean Berkely Holme-Sumner, daughter of Captain Berkeley Holme-Sumner, C.B., R.N. (retired) and Mrs. Holme-Sumner, of Plax Tol, Kent.

The bride, who was given away by Capt. C. G. Sedgwick, R.N. (H.M.S. Berwick), was charmingly attired in a dress of tulle and satin finished on the neck with large gold beads. She also wore a bridal veil of beautiful rich gold embroidery and tulle hanging from a gold medallion cape, also richly embroidered with beads.

She was attended by her sister, Miss G. Holme-Sumner, who wore a dress in gold tissue with long mittens of lace; and two pageboys, Master G. B. Tours and Master Hole.

Lieut. F. W. R. Larken, R.N., of H.M.S. Berwick, a friend of the bridegroom, was best man.

The Cathedral was packed to capacity for the occasion with distinguished guests, and the service was conducted by the Very Rev. Dean A. Swann and the Rev. P. M. Dodwell, chaplain of H.M.S. Borwick.

After the ceremony, a reception was held aboard H.M.S. Kent which was attended by over 400 guests. The happy couple later left for Manila on their honeymoon, the bride's going away dress being of black, with silver fox fur, and hat trimmed in pink.

ITALIAN COMMENT ON SITUATION

Rome, Jan. 3.
The report on the Italian Naval Estimates, tabled in the Chamber, recommends a European agreement to apply the spirit of the Four-Power Pact to naval disarmament.

The report utters a warning that the world has already started a race in naval armament, arising from the Japanese penetration of Manchuria, which has stirred American apprehensions, causing her to increase her Navy, which, in turn, is leading Britain to lay down more ships.—Reuter.

4,558 CHINESE SIGN

PROPERTY OWNERS
COMPLAIN

UNFAIR SYSTEM

A lengthy petition signed by 4,558 Chinese individuals and firms, chiefly leading residents and property owners, has been presented to Government, urging relief from water charges.

The petitioners seek either the removal of the liability for excess consumption in toto, or a substantial reduction in the amounts now charged for excess water consumed.

It is submitted that the existing method of charging is unfair in relation to tenement houses and that amounts are grossly excessive, on the ground that the method does not take into account the number of persons residing in a tenement.

"FREE" ALLOWANCE.

It is obvious that the greater the number of persons living in a tenement the less will be the amount of "free" water available to them per head.

Cases are quoted showing that a landlord, of a block of flats in the Eastern District paid Government over $1,600 in rates and excess water payments, out of a total of $4,776 rent collected, another in the Western District paid $1,600 out of $4,396, one in Kowloon paid $2,600 out of $8,627 and one in New Kowloon was required to pay to Government over $1,400 out of $2,308, actual rent collected. In addition meter rents had to be paid.

SOME FIGURES.

Figures are quoted showing that on the basis of a population in the Colony, excluding the New Territories, of 750,000, an allowance of 5,334,420 gallons per day, giving an average of 7.11 gallons per head per day, should be conceded by Government from the water rate. Assuming that 15 gallons per head per day is a fair minimum consumption, then the minimum of water consumed daily must be 11,250,000 gallons, totaling 4,106,250,000 annually, an excess over the amount allowed by assessment of 2,159,186,350 gallons, which charged at the rate of 75 cents per 1,000 gallons, costs the community $1,619,389.76.

It is pointed out that the Government expects to obtain $2,000,000 from this source in 1934.

Assessment methods are also called into question.

The petition winds up with a request for relief by doubling the existing amount of "free" water allowance and by reducing by half the amounts now chargeable for excess consumption.

ANGLO-LATVIAN TRADE PLANS FOR A NEW TREATY

London, Jan. 3.
A Latvian delegation will arrive in London to-morrow to open negotiations for an Anglo-Latvian Commercial Treaty, and will meet Major Colville, Parliamentary Secretary of the Department of Overseas Trade at the Board of Trade. The delegation will be led by the Latvian Minister in London, M. Charles Zarline.

The goods in which Latvia is particularly interested are timber, butter and bacon, and Britain's export interests to Latvia concern coal and herrings.—British Wireless.

Contestants in the Open Contract Bridge Tournament are reminded that the third round will be played at the Sports Club on Friday 5th instant, at 5.30 p.m. In the Consolation Tournament, competitors are reminded that the third round will be played at the Sports Club on the same day.

OLD COURSE RECORD AT FANLING

O. E. C. MARTON GOES
ROUND IN 69

O. E. C. Marton, whose brilliantly consistent form has been the feature of the winter golf season, broke the record for the Old Course at Fanling during the New Year meeting, with a round of 69.

The previous record for the Old Course in competition, play was 70, established by T. W. Shewan. The bogey for the course is 76 and par is 73.

Marton had an almost perfect card, playing like a machine, and playing against Par in a bogey competition won easily from scratch being four up.

He was also leader in the Medal Round Competition, with the same round, but obviously could not take both prizes.

LEADING SCORES.

Leading scores in the Par competition were:
O.E.C. Marton, scr. four up (wins)
Lt. Burnett (10) one up (second)
Capt. Mitchell (14) all square.
Lt. E. J. James (8) all square.
(70 entries)
Leading scores in the medal round were:
O. E. C. Marton 69 scr. 69
Lt. James, 78-8. 70 (wins)

SILVER RATIO DEMANDED

HOST OF BILLS IN CONGRESS

SIXTEEN TO 1

Washington, Jan. 3.
Many silver bills are being introduced into Congress and numerous old ones have been re-introduced with minor changes, including a proposition for a sixteen to one ratio with gold, together with free coinage of the white metal.

The prime mover in this proposal is Representative White.

General disappointment is felt in silver circles at the absence of any promises for silver in President Roosevelt's address to Congress and a campaign to force him to take steps is in prospect.

There was profit-taking on the New York metal market following the Presidential address.—Reuter.

The Wall Street Journal reporting on yesterday's New York Stock Market says:—

The market rallied slightly at the close after a sharp decline which was due to the failure of the President to make specific legislative recommendations, and the fact that he hinted at the regulation of the Stock Exchange, further clamping down on bankers and big business, and retention of the N.R.A., together with Governor Lehman's speech in the New York Legislature advocating Municipal ownership of utilities.—Sean Cuberton and Fritz.

NEWFOUNDLAND PREMIER

ON OFFICIAL VISIT TO LONDON

London, Jan. 3.
Mr. F. C. Aldridge, Prime Minister of Newfoundland, arrived in London to-day on a month's visit, being met by a representative of the Prime Minister, Sir Edward Hardinge, Permanent Under-Secretary for Dominion Affairs, and Ceremonial Secretary of the Dominions Office.
Mr. Aldridge will discuss with the Dominions Secretary, Mr. J. H. Thomas, to-morrow, various questions arising out of the present position of his Government. The question of the appointment of three Commissioners for the Dominion will also be considered.—British Wireless.

SERRAVALLO'S TONIC

(Cinchona and Iron Wine)

From the 5th Medical Department of the Consular Anlique Prof. Drasche at the I. R. General Hospital at Vienna.

At the request of the maker, "Serravallo's Tonic" was introduced into this Department by Dr. Stein in order to try its value. To get a comparative measure of the results obtained, the patients were weighed every week, always with regard to the time of their meals, the amount of food eaten and the quantity of faecal matter passed, and measured as to haemoglobin, according to Fleischl, for the Erythrocyte coefficient, according to Thoma-Zeiss, and for the pressure of the blood, according to Basch. The results observed after giving the patients "Serravallo's Tonic" will be seen in the following table:

Age	Illness	Duration of Cure	Weight before	Weight after	Amount of Tonic	No. of red corpuscles	Pressure of the Blood
Profession			kg	kg	litres	on entering	on leaving
H. M., 30 years, Hemiparesis	Anaemia	5 wks	58	63	0.75	4,210,000	5,736,000
P. L., 19 years, Hemiparesis	Chlorosis	7 wks	42	46	0.25	4,000,000	5,040,000
P. L., 14 years, Anaemia	Ulcerus ventriculi	4 wks	61	64	0.25	4,400,000	5,240,000
H. L., 21 years, Anaemia	Perimetritis	5 wks	53	57	0.25	1,800,000	3,200,000
V. M., 24 years, Account wife	Chlorosis	5 wks	36	43	0.25	—	—
H. L., 25 years, Balneoman	Chlorosis	4 wks	40	41	0.25	—	—
E. M., 16 years, Nervant	Chlorosis	7 wks	43	47	0.25	—	—

From the above figures, it will be seen that the patients show an increase in the quantity of haemoglobin, in the number of red corpuscles, therefore that the changes which are generally produced by treatment with iron are also produced by giving "Serravallo's Tonic."

I must however remark that this mixture was willingly taken by two patients, to whom other iron mixtures had been given, but who could not stand them; that therefore this must be mentioned as an advantage which this mixture has over others; it never caused any disturbance to the stomach. On the contrary, patients suffering from Chlorosis with want of appetite (in consequence of parenchymatous Gastritis) "Serravallo's Tonic" proved itself a very powerful appetizer. The same result was obtained in six other cases with anorexia during convalescence after different illnesses and always had a speedy effect.

The increase of appetite was ascribed by the patients themselves to this mixture, and was most willingly taken on account of its agreeable taste. Therefore, "Serravallo's Tonic" is most advisable in cases where the therapeutic use of iron is intended to act as a tonic to the appetite, such as in primary and secondary Anaemia, in slow convalescence and especially for children.

YOUR CHILDREN

How to Prevent "Hunching"

By Olive Roberts Barton

It doesn't do one bit of good to tell a child to stand up straight. He will do it for a minute or so perhaps, but the instant his mind is on something else, down he slumps again.

He will only hold his chin up and his shoulders back as long as he remembers. True, if he can be made conscious of them altogether without letting anything else interfere, the miraculous might happen. Habit is made up of of-repeated actions.

But I have never known a child who grew straight merely because he was talked into it. Children, fortunately, often do adopt better postures as they grow older, but other things are to be thanked for the change usually.

Mal-nourished Amid Plenty

A mal-nourished child is usually round shouldered, dull-eyed, and anything but soldier-like in his bearing. Such children are not invariably poor. The mal-nourished child can be found anywhere, at the well covered tables of the rich as well as in the unemployed home. A child on three none-too-plaintful meals a day may be getting all the proteins, starches, sugars, fats and vitamins he needs because the food is simple, well-assorted; and what is better still, he may have a good digestive tract that makes the most of it.

The child who has had his digestive organs weakened through past illness, or had a poor beginning when a baby may not be absorbing all the "good" of what he eats. Such a child may have well-to-do parents. Rich and poor alike may suffer.

The causes of inability to take proper care of food are not always easy to identify. I lay most humped-up shoulders, and sagging heads, however, to some weakness in the child, not merely careless habit. The one who has grown well from birth, who has had a correct diet from babyhood, including cod liver oil and calcium-containing foods, and who has never had an undermining sickness is usually straight. His head is set well on his shoulders, his hips are flat and held in, his stomach flat, too—not protruding. No sign of rickets. No sign of undue weariness or dullness or slumping.

Over Study Causes "Hunch"

Of course children may get the "student hunch" from studying too long without compensating exercise. And adolescents may be compelled to crouch a bit because bones grow long and the muscles cannot keep up with them. Muscles may pull shoulders over until they, too, have done their growing to match the bones.

But little children should be straight. Long hours of sleep on

Wise Use of Cosmetics

By Alicia Hart

Cosmetics should be used to emphasize your own natural beauty.

The wise woman does not only apply makeup in an effort to change her appearance. She uses it to bring out the good points of her face and to obliterate the bad ones.

A famous manufacturer of cosmetics says that all women should concentrate on improving the appearance of their eyes.

a comfortable bed, plenty of exercise and proper food should make a soldier of a child. If there is something keeping his chin on his chest the doctor should be consulted. Gym work may help, too. At any rate, mere words are not the answer, or half of it.

Artists, sculptors and beauty authorities agree that beautiful eyes practically assure a woman of true natural beauty. Therefore, choose your eye cosmetics carefully. See that they flatter your eyes.

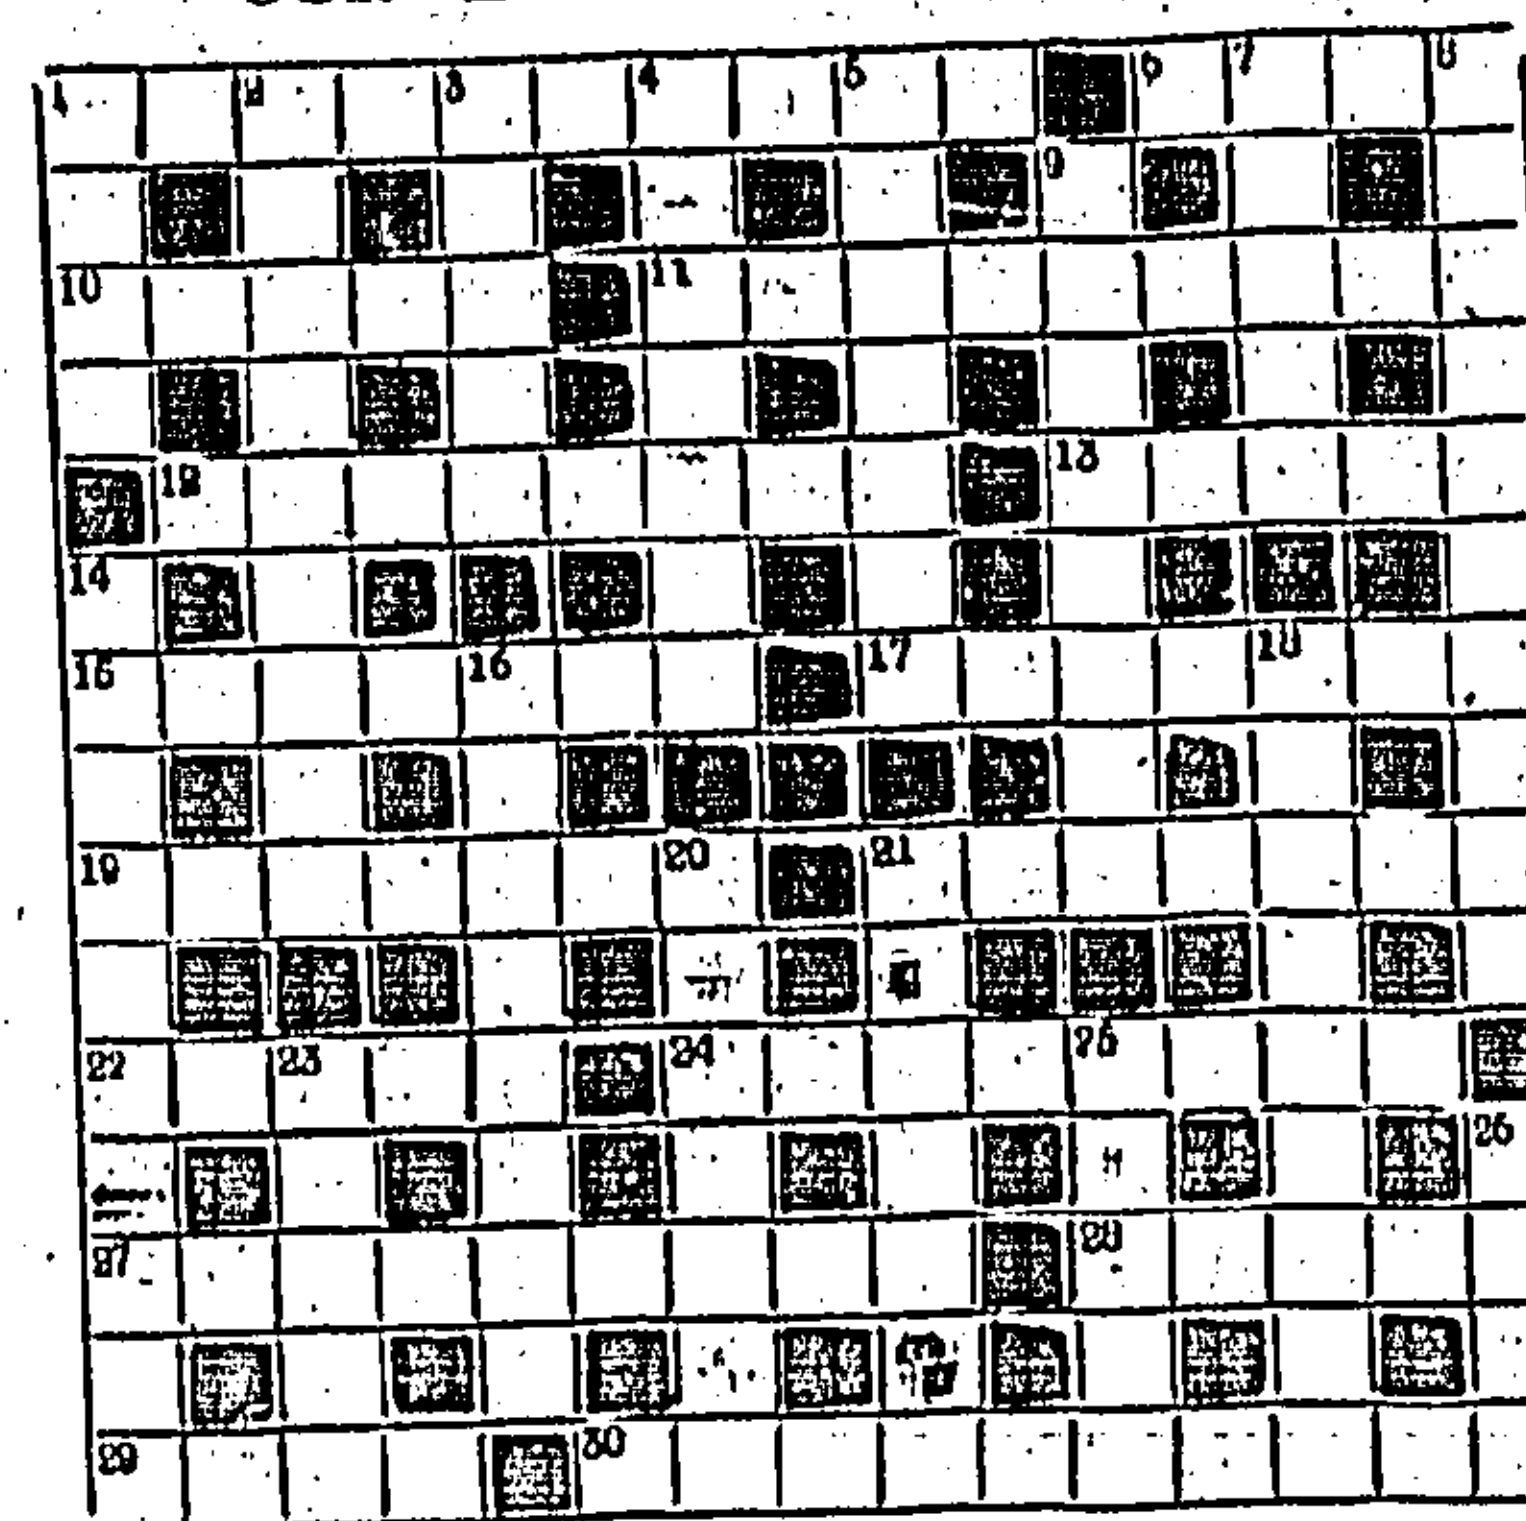

Use of Rouge

Putting rouge high on your cheeks and blending it upward your eyes will help to keep the interest in your face centred where it should be.

Cosmetics are intended to make you look natural and healthy. There is simply no use in using an orange-toned powder over a skin which has a healthful, warm pink glow. You defeat the purpose of make-up when you make that mistake.

Lipstick, of course, should be used to put a natural-looking shade on lips that lack colour. The best way to determine just what colour lipstick you need is to pinch your lips and then survey them in a mirror. The colour that they become after the pinch is about the shade which you should select in a lipstick.

CHAPTER XXXIV

The girl went on without waiting for a reply. "Maybe that's a queer thing to ask but—oh, I mean it, Mr. Bannister! There's no reason why you should take such risks—"

"What risks?" Bannister asked. Juliet Franco unclasped her hands and immediately clasped them together again. She was leaning forward and her eyes, watching him intently, seemed to darken.

"There are risks," she said. "Don't you see that I could never forgive myself if anything happened? You and your aunt have been so kind to me. You've brought me here to your home—treated me like a guest. I couldn't bear to cause any trouble for you! That's why I want you to promise to give it up, to stop trying to find out who killed Tracy King."

Bannister broke the corner from a piece of toast and buttered it. "It seems to me," he said, "that you're greatly exaggerating the situation. There isn't the slightest danger—"

"Oh, but there is!" The exclamation was so swift it was startling. Bannister put down the toast.

"What sort of danger?" he asked. "What do you expect to happen?"

The girl lowered her eyes. When she raised them a moment later she said, "I don't know. But I'm afraid it will be something terrible! I—I wish you'd do as I ask!"

He was to remember those words more than once in the days to come. He was to remember and wonder how he could have treated them so carelessly at the time.

"Well," he said, "I can't promise to do that. But, as for letting myself in for any danger, I assure you I'm not going to do anything foolhardy."

"You—won't give it up?" the girl asked slowly.

"No, Miss Franco, but if you've been doing any worrying on my account you can set your mind at rest right now. There's not the slightest reason for it."

"But you don't need to do it!" the girl urged. "There isn't any reason why you should. Your aunt told me you were only working on the newspaper for a little while. You could give it all up so easily—"

"I don't quite see it that way," Bannister said steadily. "But as for danger—that's ridiculous! And now suppose you give me a little more of that hot coffee."

She filled the cup with steaming coffee. "More toast?" she asked.

"No more, thanks."

There was a little more casual conversation between them while Bannister finished his breakfast. Ten minutes later he left the house and walked the block to the street car line.

His gloomy mood of an hour earlier had disappeared. The sky was still gray and looked as though snow might fall before evening, but the crisp, cold air was invigorating.

Bannister, as he swung aboard the street car and found a seat, was still thinking about the girl who had sat across the breakfast table from him. In the blue and white kingly dress she had looked rather like an old fashioned picture. And she had warned him about dangers he might encounter. That was amusing. Dangers in the sleepy little home town of Tremont!

He opened his newspaper, turned to his favourite comic strip and then the sport pages. By the time he had finished with them they were down town. He left the car and walked to the Evening Post building.

As usual he climbed the stairs to the editorial rooms instead of waiting for the elevator. Jim Paxton was in his office and called to him as he passed the door.

"Hello, Jim," he said. "What's on your mind?"

"Paxton leaned back in his chair. 'The Tremont Club's having a dinner next week,' he said. 'They want you to make a talk for them—'

"Good Lord! You know I can't make speeches," Bannister protested. "Not me, Jim! You don't think I'd be roped in on a thing like that, do you? Say, I'd rather face a rifle squad. Look here, I thought you were a friend of mine!"

Paxton's expression was rather sheepish. "I knew you wouldn't want to do it," he admitted, "but I had to promise to ask you. It was Ben Cameron's idea."

"Then tell Cameron he'll have to find another victim. All my evenings next week are definitely engaged."

"All right, Dave. I'll tell them that. Anything new this morning?"

"Not that I know of," Bannister told him. "Have you seen Gaihey around?"

But Bannister did not need to ask Austin where to look for Gaihey. As soon as he stepped into the city room he saw the reporter. Gaihey sat at a desk in a corner of the room and, seated in a chair facing him, was a woman.

Bannister turned to the table on which exchange newspapers from other cities were piled. He was not interested in Gaihey's companion. It would probably be only a few minutes before the interview was ended anyhow. Bannister decided to wait.

He turned carelessly through the newspaper on top of the pile, turned through the second, and then something caught his eye. He was deep in the marvels of an ancient temple recently discovered in Mexico when he heard his name.

"Oh, Bannister!"

It was Gaihey who had called and now was motioning for him to come over to the desk in the corner.

Bannister crossed the room. He said, "Hello. What's up?"

The woman beside Gaihey looked up. Bannister saw that she was wearing a brown coat and brown hat with an orange ribbon on it. Her face was rather pretty, though it was too broad and her nose inclined to turn up. Her age, he guessed, would be somewhere between 18 and 28. Stiffly curled hair showed beneath her hat and the rouge on her cheeks had been applied in large pink circles.

Gaihey said, "Miss Connor, this is Mr. Bannister. I'd like him to hear what you've been telling me."

The woman looked at Bannister and seemed to hesitate. Her eyes returned to Gaihey's. "Is he on the paper, too?" she asked.

Gaihey nodded. "Yes," he said. "He knows as much about the case as I do." He turned to Bannister. "Miss Connor," he explained, "is a maid at the Coleman's—Parker Coleman's home. She's read about the King murder in the Post and saw my name over the stories. That's why she asked for me. She thinks she knows something of importance."

The maid interrupted. She said, "I don't know whether it's important or not. And I don't know if I should have come here. If anyone finds out about it they'll fire me. I know they will!"

"But nobody's going to find out about it," Gaihey reassured her. "I've already told you that. All I want you to do is to tell Mr. Bannister what you've just told me."

The maid's large blue eyes continued to regard Bannister doubtfully. At last she said, "All right—but I don't think I should have come. I've thought about it all week, trying to make up my mind what was the right thing to do. I came down town this morning to see the dentist and when I passed this building and saw it was where the newspaper was printed I decided to come in."

Both men were silent, waiting for her to go on.

"I wouldn't have said anything to anybody," the maid continued, her words coming more rapidly. "Only Mr. King was such a wonderful young man. I've got one of his pictures—autographed. I wrote and asked for it and right away he sent the picture. Wasn't that nice of him? When I heard what

RUBBER SHARES.

WARNING AGAINST TOO MUCH OPTIMISM

London, Jan. 3.

The continuous rise in the price of rubber shares is made the subject of a warning note in The Times to-day. It is pointed out that though consumption of rubber has encouragingly increased during the past year, production still exceeds consumption. Many shares have reached levels only justifiable by a much higher price of rubber than at present exists. —Reuter.

had happened to him I couldn't hardly work or eat or sleep or anything. I kept thinking how handsome he looked and the sweet way he sang! I saw him once on the street, too—with that Denise Lang."

She paused and her eyes turned from one of her listeners to the other. "I was thinking about that," she said, "when it came to me. I mean about what happened that night."

Nuns, on their way to the ballot-boxes in the recent Spanish elections. It was the vote of the women which caused such a surprise and the chaos which followed.

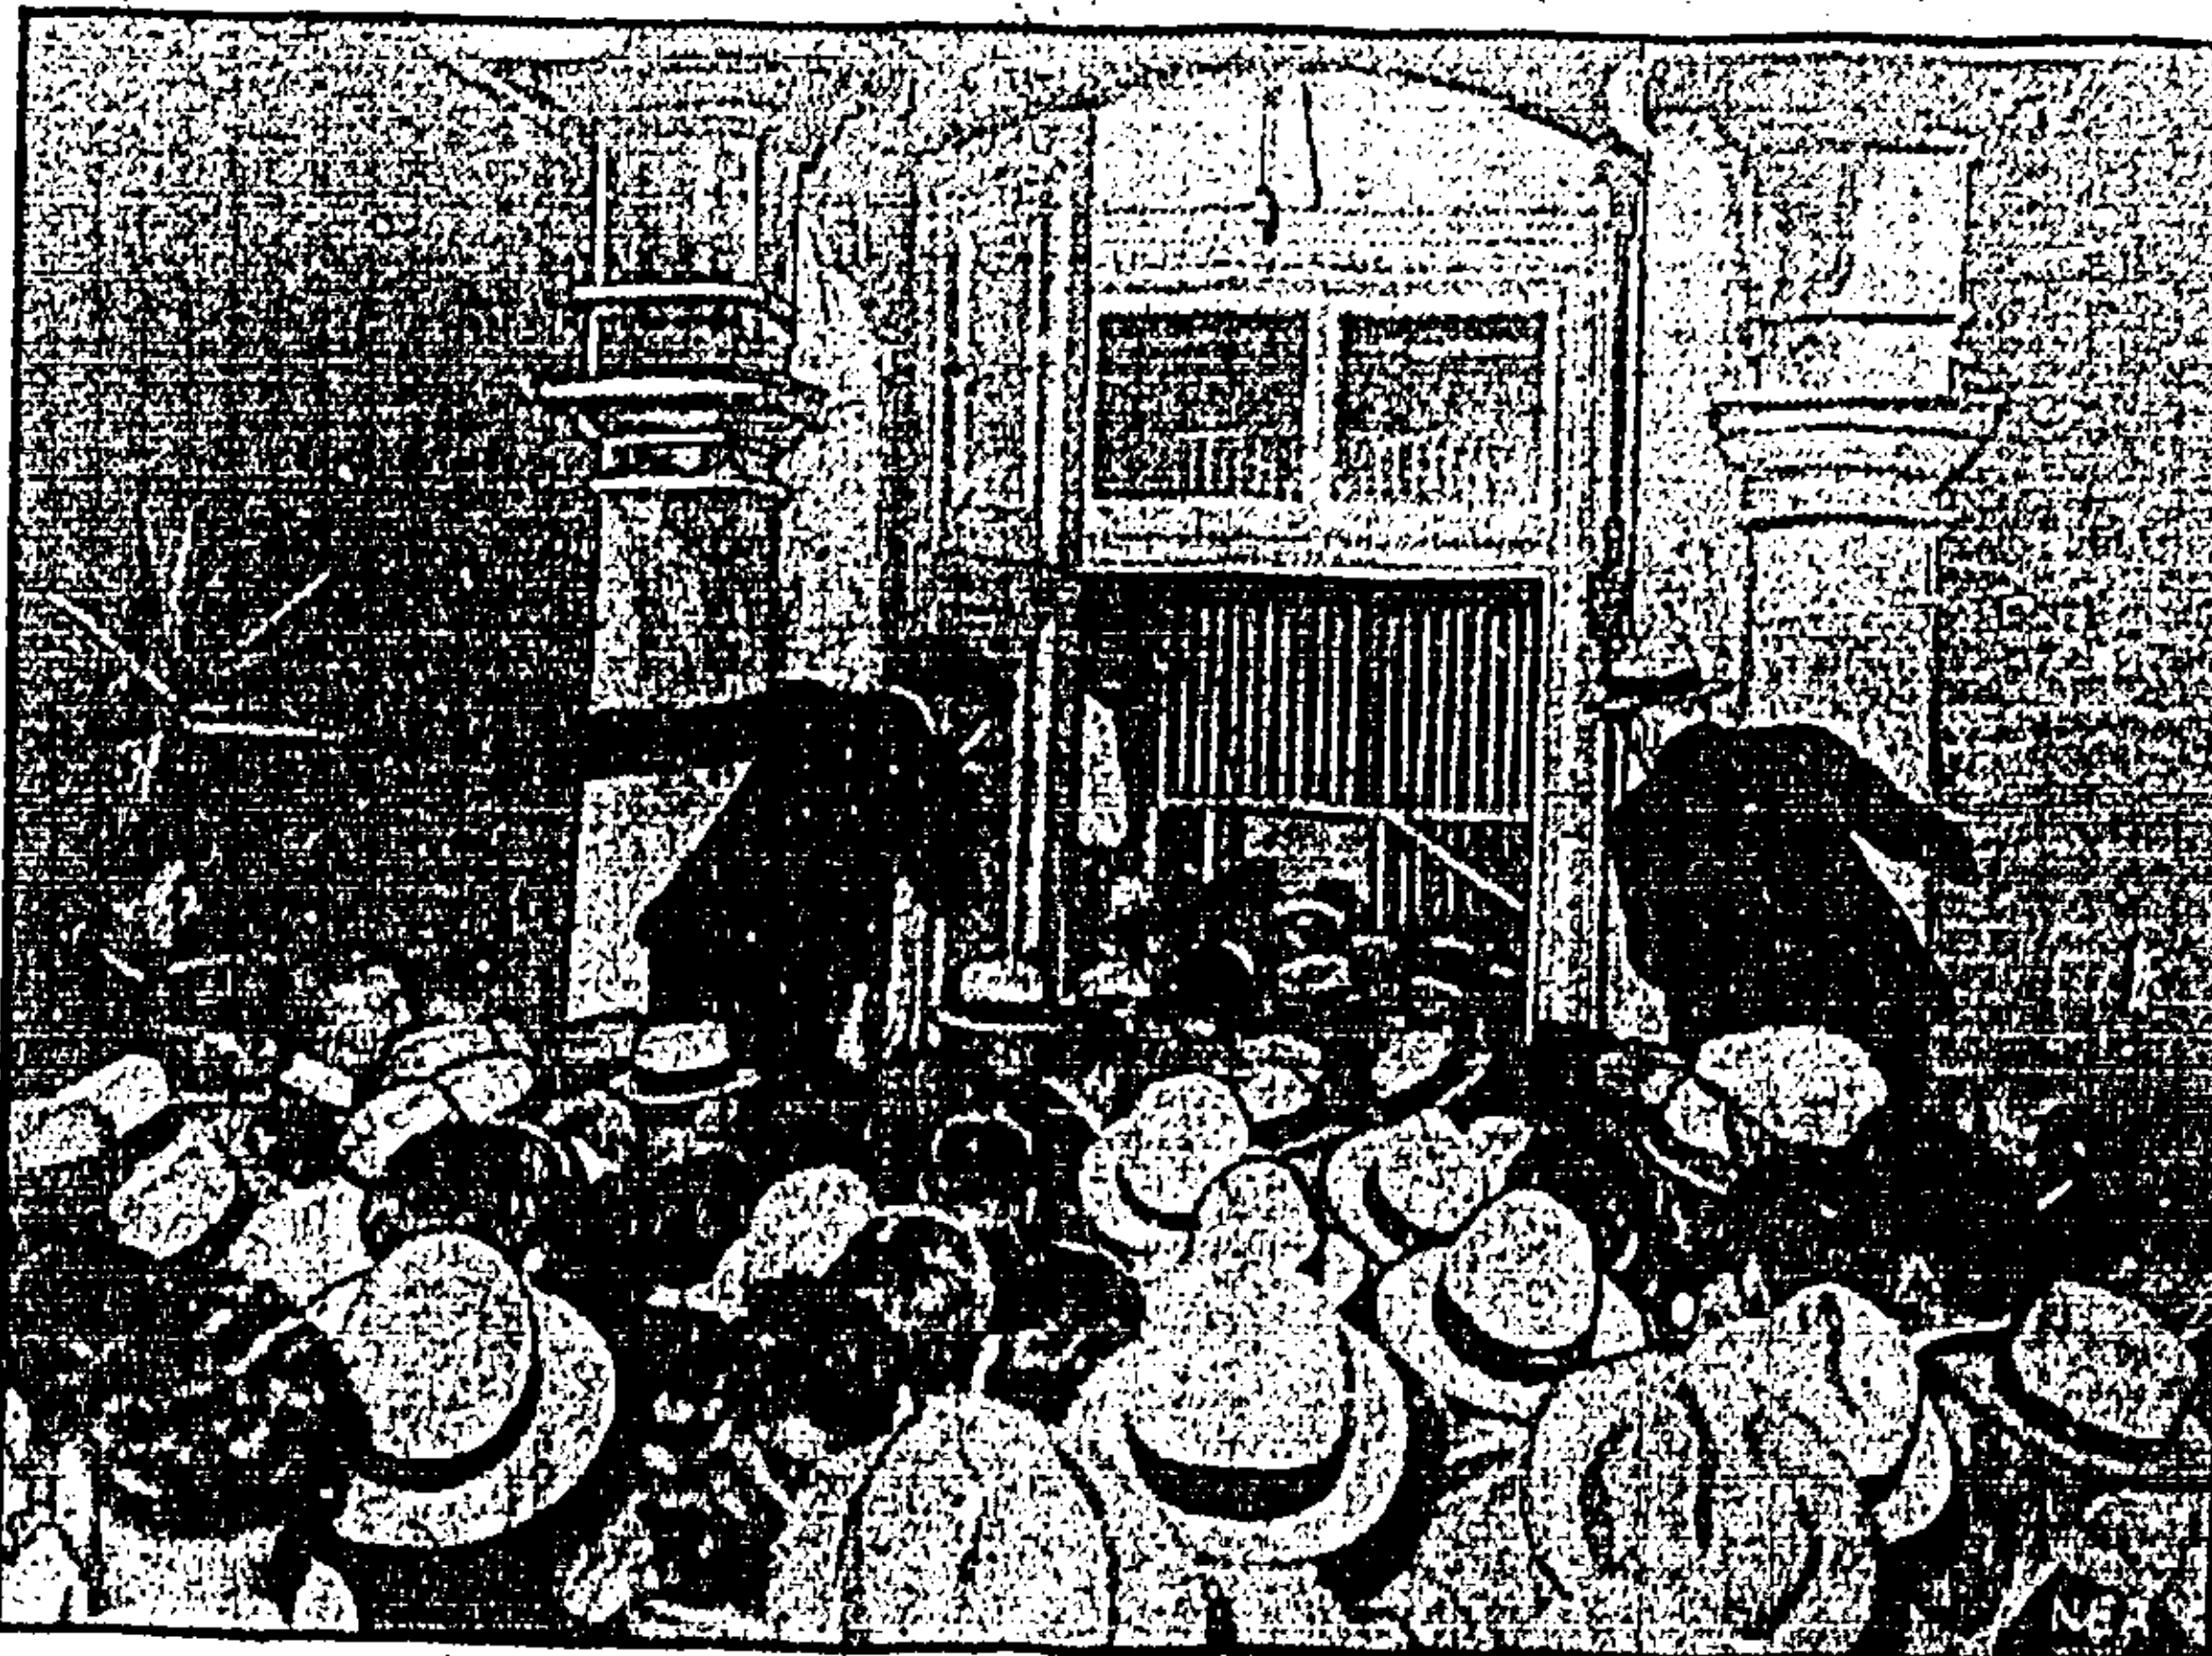

The Australian version of marbles, played by "boys" in Torres Straits, with cowrie shells. Some of the contests are witnessed by large crowds of natives.

Germany had a new political development to speculate on following the elections when General Goering flew to Italy with Prince Philipp of Hesse, the German son-in-law of Italy's king, for a conference with Premier Mussolini. Prince Philipp, who is favoured in certain Nazi circles as a candidate for the German throne, is shown (right) with Goering as they arrived in Rome.

The fury of the mob which beat down the steel doors of the San Jose Jail in California and dragged the alleged kidnappers and slayers of Brooke Hart into the street to lynch them is shown vividly in this picture. Amid a rain of bricks and stones, fighting through a fog of tear gas, they crashed the door, using a heavy length of oil well casing as a battering ram.

The triumphant howl "We've got 'em" rang through the San Jose Jail, as the photographer, risking the crowd's fury, snapped this picture showing the frenzied throng storming at the entrance and struggling for places of vantage as its leaders searched the cells for the alleged killers of Brooke Hart.

BRITISH EMPIRE AS MODEL FOR NEW LEAGUE

Interesting Italian Suggestion

ARMY BOAT
CAPSIMUMANOTHER ACCIDENT IN NAVAL ANCHORAGE

Two small vessels were sunk in Hongkong waters during the night.

The military launch "Tommy Atkins" was rammed and sunk at about 8.30 p.m. last night by the Kongmun steamer, Kwong Fook Cheong, when returning from Tai Nam Camp, Castle Peak, towing a lighter.

The launch left Castle Peak at about 5.30 and when near the Ma Wan Light was struck amidships by the Kwong Fook Cheong, a vessel of 538 tons. She sank almost immediately, her crew scrambling aboard the lighter, where they awaited the arrival of a police launch which towed the lighter back to Hongkong.

The "Tommy Atkins" is stated to be lying in about 100 feet of water near the Ma Wan Light bearing S.E. one cable. It is feared that it will not be possible to salvage her. The damage to the river steamer has not yet been estimated.

MOTORBOAT LOST.

The coxswain of the motor boat Hop Sang, Leung Kuu, and a Japanese passenger he was taking to Mongkok also came in for an involuntary ducking when the motor boat was rammed and sunk in collision with the s.s. Kwai Sang.

According to the story of the coxswain he left Wanchoi at about 7 o'clock with a passenger for Mongkok and when near the No. 4 Buoy in the Naval Anchorage his engine stopped. He tried to effect repairs and while doing so noticed the Kwai Sang approaching abeam on the port side. The Kwai Sang gave no signal and struck the motor boat on her port quarter. The Hop Sang gave a list to starboard and sank within three minutes. The Kwai Sang dropped a lifebuoy but was some distance away before she could pull up. The coxswain and his passenger were later picked up and taken to Hongkong.

COUP D'ETAT FOILED IN PORTUGALRAIDERS SENT TO THE AZORES

Lisbon, Nov. 28. The Government has published a long communique to allay the fears that another insurrectionary movement is imminent. The extraordinary precautions taken in Lisbon and other parts of Portugal indicate that the Government does not intend to be surprised.

It is explained in the official note that the Government has been well aware that many of the amnestied exiles have been plotting a coup d'Etat, to coincide with the Spanish elections.

Many Portuguese and foreigners acting with them crossed the frontier into Portugal recently. Portuguese secret police notified the Government, which arrested the raiders. On November 19, 150 rebels were sent to various fortresses in the Azores.

Among the rebels was an airman, an outstanding member of the revolutionary movement. Many of the conspirators have escaped. The plotters had a newspaper which was being published secretly at the old University of Coimbra.

LIBEL ON A POSTER

LOSE APPEAL

The Court of Appeal dismissed the appeal by Messrs. W. H. Smith and Son against the jury's award and judgment for £3,000 damages against them in the libel action brought by the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

The Company alleged that Messrs. Smith circulated a newspaper poster bearing the words "More Grave Sun Life Disclosures."

Lord Justice Scrutton, in his judgment, said that there was ample evidence that Messrs. Smith were negligent in not knowing that the poster or the newspaper contained a libel.

Though, at their head office, Messrs. Smith might be compelled to send out posters and newspapers without knowing what was in them, the jury might think they were carelessly carrying on business if their bookstall manager who did see the posters which might be libellous, did not exercise his discretion and consult the head office in any doubtful case before he exhibited a poster.

MUSSOLINI AND
CONVERSATIONS

Rome, Jan. 3. The use of the "charter" of the British Commonwealth of Nations as a model for the reform of the League of Nations is the interesting suggestion put forward in Rome in connexion with Italy's demand for League revision.

It is understood that the future of the League formed one of the principal subjects discussed between Sir John Simon and Signor Mussolini to-day when the British Foreign Minister, who was accompanied by Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador, began his conversations with the Italian Premier at the Palazzo Venezia this afternoon.

"The meeting was cordial" states an official communique issued at the conclusion of the meeting, which lasted for two hours.

EXPLORATORY TALKS.

It is understood that the first conversations were exploratory of the ground and that Signor Mussolini explained the lines on which he wants the League of Nations revised.

As regards disarmament, it is believed that the Italian and British viewpoints are very close.

SIGNIFICANT ARTICLE.

Italian attention is chiefly concentrated on the artificial irregularities of the Peace Treaty, rather than upon technical disarmament, while, as regards League reform, the newspaper Lavora Fascista, in a significant article, demands reconstruction on the principles regulating the British Commonwealth of Nations.

The Journal declares that proposals on those lines were, in fact, presented in Paris in 1919 by British statesmen.

Sir John Simon and Signor Mussolini will meet again to-morrow.—Reuter.

THE ROOSEVELT
GOLD PLANS.

In the fierce controversy which has arisen in the United States over the Roosevelt administration's gold policy, the opposition is certainly getting its full share of the debate. Which ever school of thought is right, open and unrestricted discussion of the country's most conflicting problem is likely to bring about a surer and more effective solution than would consideration of the difficulty from one angle alone. Both the sound money advocates and the so-called inflationists have strong reasons to back up their arguments. Each has rallied to its side the submissions of professors of economics and other experts to prove that it is right. Each, we may assume, wants to find the best way out of the depression.

Difference between the sound money men and the inflationists lies in the difference between a strict adherence to the economic phase of the gold problem and a consideration of its political significance as well. For, in the broader, humanitarian sense, politics has much to do with the matter. While Wall Street looks upon the subject from a cold, matter of fact, dollars and cents viewpoint, President Roosevelt is forced to consider it not only in that light, but from the angle of the tradesman and the consumer as well. This naturally complicates the problem much more for the Government than it does for the financiers. Conceivably, if the sound money advocates had not arisen to criticise the Roosevelt policies, the more conservative phase of the discussion might have been overlooked. Had there been a disposition to swallow all the President's nostrums without question, the country might by this time have experienced actual inflation, with all its accompanying dangers. Reasoned analysis of the President's policies may therefore have a very real value. Mr. Roosevelt's task is assuredly one of great magnitude, presenting almost innumerable pitfalls for the unwary. He is finding, also, that there are big interests to be fought, the latest opposition coming from the Federal Reserve Banks, which bitterly resent the decree placing control of their gold holdings under the Treasury. How his plans will work out in practice is a matter for speculation, but he is obviously the type of man who, having once made up his mind, is not easily deflected from the course which he sets. The next few months will be a crucial time for the President and his advisers. Well-wishers will pray that he may succeed in the task to which he has put his hand.

NOTES OF THE DAYFATE OF LEAGUE

Those who watch the signs of the times in high politics are awaiting with keen interest to learn the results of Sir John Simon's visit to Rome. It is widely felt that the whole future of the League of Nations may depend on the talks between Signor Mussolini and Britain's Foreign Secretary. Lately, there has been talk of nations preparing to "go off" the League as many have gone off gold, of a revival of the old balance of power in Europe with new groupings. The League is said to be already valueless as a means of collective security, and many who genuinely sympathise with Geneva's ideals are calling loudly for a move to abandon the old order and to set about erecting some new form of League to take its place. Much of what is said on the League's deficiencies is unhappily true. Geneva attempted to bring pressure to bear upon Japan in the dispute with China and, so far as tangible results were concerned, failed. There followed a grave loss of prestige, which made it easier for Germany to withdraw from Geneva and will make it still easier for any other dissatisfied nation to do the same.

PRACTICAL AGE

That an institution at once so far-reaching and so experimental should sustain one or two major setbacks might not in another age have suggested ultimate failure. But the present age is essentially a practical one. It must needs be so, for it has many changes and much confusion to cope with, and many new institutions to set in motion. It cannot afford to tinker with machinery which will not work. According to "realistic" thought, therefore, the League of Nations, having shown itself ineffective in certain supremely important issues, might be discarded and all the energies and resourcefulness of the age set to work on a new international machine. But with the League of Nations one is not dealing with a mere political expedient that may be easily changed or scrapped. One is dealing with an expression of the highest hopes, the most sacred ideals and the deepest convictions of humanity. The expression of any great ideal does not stand or fall by a temporary setback, by defections or failures of individuals, or even of nations.

VALUABLE MACHINERY

For the moment the League may look far less attractive than "realistic" and resurgent nationalism. It is natural, perhaps, to an age that looks for change, to a centre interest upon the dramatic changes made on the realistic basis and to forget the slow, patient structural work in daily progress at Geneva and The Hague—not merely political, but judicial, economic, social and cultural, reaching into all phases of the life of the nations and welding them into this League idea that shall stand for the varying forms of unity of interest in all nations. If some of the nations, owing to political excitement and changes, are not yet ready to take share in this great organisation that has brought fifty-seven nations into a single membership, the ideal remains, and the machinery.

SPIRIT OF GENEVA

It is sometimes said that the League, after all, is no more than the nations that compose it, and that all the self-interest of the nations is merely reproduced at the Geneva conferences. Nothing could be more misleading. At Geneva there is far more than the constituent nations. The "spirit of Geneva" and its effect upon the delegates who enter its halls is one of the first things that impresses everyone who has attended its meetings. Even in the purely political aspect of Geneva, where nationalism necessarily is still much in evidence, something of the new spirit, assiduously developed by the Secretariat, is usually apparent, and in course of time will become more so. The work of drawing fifty-seven nations together cannot be lightly undone and done over again. Even if it were, the new form would incur the same attacks as the old and would be morally less well equipped to resist them. It is the task of this generation to hold what has been set up—to modify where necessary, but always to hold, to keep its gaze fixed firmly on the ideal and to preserve for its successors, through all trials and setbacks, one of the greatest achievements the post-war age has to its credit.

HOW SCOTLAND YARD
FIGHTS CRIME

By HUGH BRADY

THIS daily recurring name, "Scotland Yard," stirs up in the minds of most people visions of the romantic, perhaps sordid, story of crime hidden behind the walls of the great Embankment building.

In a sense they are right. But for the man in a hurry—the crime reporter, for instance—Scotland Yard is the home of lost causes. It is only when a crime has entered the realms of history that it finds its way to the archives. When crime news is fresh it must be sought farther afield.

Eight hundred people are employed in Scotland Yard. And when I tell you that only about 1 in 5 of these is a policeman you are perhaps surprised.

You would be further surprised to learn that a far smaller proportion are detectives. Fiction writers have led you to believe that Scotland Yard is crammed with detectives, ready at any moment to take a hand in clearing up baffling mysteries. How different are the facts!

Civil Servants of both sexes abound in the huge eight-storied building, as also do uniformed officers, and it is only here and there you will meet a detective. It is in a circumscribed space at Scotland Yard that the detective stands on his own ground.

There are close upon 1,000 members of the Criminal Investigation Department—all officially Scotland Yard detectives—but there are many who seldom visit the police headquarters. Their work lies with the 23 divisions of the Metropolitan Police.

Who works at Scotland Yard? The Commissioner is there, so are his Assistant-Commissioners, and along the corridors of gloom the visitor almost tip-toes past the various sections known to the initiated by mysterious hieroglyphics.

There is certainly some truth in that statement. The amount of clerical work performed at Scotland Yard is prodigious, and it is only the expert who can draw the line of demarcation between policeman and Civil Servant.

Why the telephones are controlled at night by policemen and by Civil Servants during the day has always puzzled me. The telephone room contains direct lines from Buckingham Palace, Wellington Barracks, the House of Commons, the Director of Public Prosecutions Office, the Admiralty, and the War Office.

Civil Servants control the General Registry, into which mail, cables, and telegrams pour daily, but the uniformed constables receive and despatch everything at Scotland Yard. Chief constables have Civil Service clerks, but superintendents are helped by policemen.

Some of the motor-drivers at the Yard are policemen, others are civilians; but many of the "Mystery Sections" are composed of detectives, uniformed men, and Civil Servants.

This is especially true of the Ideas Section, which sifts all kinds of suggestions.

The Pay Department at Scotland Yard is a huge section, and there are others dealing with printing, traffic, wireless, promotions, disciplinary boards, awards, recruiting, examinations, health, fingerprints, and criminal records, the staffs of which depart each evening at scheduled hours.

Visitors from everywhere think Scotland Yard is a show place. Let me tell you it is not. Tom Mix, the film actor, gaily dressed in his cowboy clothes, once rode his white horse to call on the Commissioner. He was asked politely by a policeman to go away because he was causing an obstruction. And that was that.

Have you heard of the Black Museum, which contains all kinds of curios—criminal and otherwise? It is in the dungeons of Scotland Yard, and it is a rare privilege for anyone not connected with the police to be admitted. There is nothing new under the sun, and there you would find (if admitted) relics of notorious criminals. Anything else? On second thoughts, yes; a sixty-years-old invention on somewhat similar lines to the robot controls of present-day London traffic—with green, amber, and red lights complete!

Scotland Yard, after all, in the public mind is the great institution that handles crime in all its aspects. So for the moment I must forget the people at Scotland Yard—the vast majority, who competently carry on their daily clerical and technical work.

On one floor are to be found the headquarters of "Central," that is the Criminal Investigation Department. Its total strength is 116, and this number includes a chief constable, five superintendents, and four chief-inspectors. Fifty officers belong to the Flying Squad, who almost invariably are afoot or in motor-cars seeking criminals.

This is the branch that burns the midnight oil. Night or day there are detectives there who are ready to respond to calls from any part of the world. In the main, however, London's divisional detectives are not alarmists. A divisional crime brings the men from the local stations, and they work with the knowledge that the reserve men at Scotland Yard can help at any moment—with additional men, perhaps, or by fingerprints, photographs, or wireless descriptions of wanted men.

Any piece of writing about Scotland Yard would be incomplete without a reference to the famous "Back Hall." That is the way into Scotland Yard when the main entrance is closed. A late caller is always seen first by the "Back Hall" inspector, a man of encyclopaedic police knowledge, backed by a staff of constables, and it is these men who "carry on" in the stillness of the night.

The reserve detectives are on duty upstairs. In cases of urgency the "Back Hall" inspector can speak on the telephone to any of the staff from Lord Trenchard downwards. The light in his office shines brightly through an ocean of gloom.

I have told you that there are only 116 detectives in the Central Branch at Scotland Yard. Near by—separated by a bridge in the quadrangle—is Scotland House, the home of the Special Branch; strength, 132.

This is the branch that caught spies during the war, watches foreign revolutionaries, keeps its eye on the wild dreamers of new worlds. All its men are linguists and well travelled; their secrets are the nation's.

"And while he is laughing at the story about the Scotsman you are getting out your samples and order blanks."

By Eddie Kelly XXX

WE have just heard about a new Society that will make you rich for the rest of your life.

All you've got to do is join the Multiplication Table.

No more work, no more worry, nothing but wait for the commissions to roll in.

It's this way.

All you've got to do is to send a paltry ten bucks to the Society and you become a Life Member.

Now you're off. Back will come a consignment of little books about multiplication, which you have to sell at ten bucks a time.

The first three you sell are buckshee, because you don't rake in any commission. But once you find the fourth mug the money commences to pour in. Out of No. 4's ten dollars you rake in $7.50. Now, No. 5, to save his money, has to get to work.

The first three he rakes in are no good to him, but they're worth $5 to you, because you're indirectly responsible for selling them.

And you've only begun. Each of these three members have to bag three new 'uns each before they start to rake in the skeels, but you still draw your bit of squeeze. When they get their three mugs they can start.

Girls, it's a cinch. We ask you? Why, in less than a year, you could earn $10,000 if you sold every citizen in Hongkong. We've often done worse than this out at Fanning or Happy Valley.

The population of Hongkong is about 900,000, but consider the potentialities of the scheme elsewhere. Fancy hopping in among China's 400,000,000. (20,000 deduction to allow for depreciation in the Fukien war), or India's 35,000,000 (less 11 lost owing to Jardine and body-line), or even Russia's paltry 100,000,000. Why, there's no reason why you couldn't clean up ten or twenty bucks in no time.

And ten or twenty bucks is ten or twenty bucks these days.

Anyone interested in the scheme can send their ten bucks along to us, c/o this office.

The odds are 1,000,000 to one that it won't go to the promoters of the scheme. We know our multiplication table.

CUMSHAW

A well known friend of ours entered the Hongkong Hotel with a ten cent bit, a silver dollar, and three one cents in his pocket. He asked for a Resch's beer, and after quaffing it, paid with the dollar, adding the small change as cumshaw. What did he get in return?

ANSWER: A thick ear (the dollar was chopped).

The Worm Through the Ages

When Sir Worm, Crusader, is safely buckled up in armour, he opens vizzor and finds courage to tell wife he is going on crusade for five years to fight Saracens.

Oh, so after giving worm best years of her life worm is going to leave wife for five years while worm goes gallivanting off on crusades, is he?

That is nice way to treat hard-working wife who has worked fingers to bone to make worm's home comfortable.

Castle with 100 rooms and 500 men-at-arms, cooks, scullions and grooms not good enough for pampered worm who is merely finding excuse to go abroad with witty worm friends.

And if worm thinks he is going to frighten Saracens in his silly tin-pot armour and foolish plume he is greatly mistaken.

Saracens will roar with laughter when they see worm galloping about, waving lance like little boy playing at soldiers.

But probably cunning, sex-mad worm has no intention of fighting Saracens. More likely he is going all the way to Palestine, or where Saracens live, to oggle shameless blonde princess. If that is worm's intention he had better look out, as Saracens have short shrift with Christian worms who oggle Saracen women.

Probably worm will lose head, and wife will be left with castle on hands and end days as beggar. As dinner is ready worm had better take off silly armour and stop showing off.

Sir Worm calls pages to remove armour and decides to go on next crusade.

NATIONAL ECONOMIC PLAN

Washington, Jan. 3.

"The finest repeal of the Constitution I have ever heard," was the pithy comment of Mr. McNary, the Republican leader, at the conclusion of President Roosevelt's first personal address to Congress, when he dealt generally with the Recovery programme and objectives.

General opinion in the House and out of it seems to be that the President said extremely little in a very long speech, but there is reason to believe that, apart from prior discussions with political leaders helping to clear the way, Mr. Roosevelt is assured of an harmonious session.

His speech was greeted with applause from all parts of the House particularly when he made allusions to gold stabilisation and when he asserted that prosperity depends upon the farmers' well-being.

PROTECTION AGAINST EXPLOITATION

"We are definitely on the road to recovery," claimed the President.

"A line has been rightly drawn between those to whom recovery means a return to old methods—the number of which is small—and those for whom recovery means reform of many of the old methods, readjustments of ways of thinking and therefore of many of our social and economic arrangements. Our task is to improve, to alter when necessary, and in all cases to go forward."

END OF LAISSEZ FAIRE.

"We have asked many citizens to surrender their licences to do as they please in business, but the State has given in exchange protection against exploitation by fellow men and combinations."

President Roosevelt asserted that the Government's credit had been fortified by drastic reductions in expenditures and economies.

An overwhelming majority of the banks which were re-opened last Spring are in a sound condition.

Six hundred million dollars in frozen deposits are being restored to depositors in banks which are not being permitted to re-open.

N.R.A. ACHIEVEMENTS.

The President went on to review the achievements of the National Recovery Administration in securing the re-employment of several millions of men and the re-organisation of industry, together with an assurance of reasonable profits together.

Industry will pay proper conditions to labour.

The abolition of child labour was a distinct achievement of the N.R.A.

NATIONAL PLAN.

"We have created as a permanent feature of our modernised industrial structure a system by which it will continue under the supervision of the government, but not under its arbitrary dictation."

He looked forward to the not very distant future when annual appropriations of government would wholly be covered by current revenue, enabling work to proceed with the National Plan.

Such National Plan, in a generation or two, would return many times the money spent upon it by conserving natural resources and enabling millions of people to take better advantage of their opportunities.

FOREIGN FIELD.

Turning to international affairs, President Roosevelt said: "I cannot present a picture of complete optimism. We seek, with our neighbours, avoidance of territorial expansion and interference by one nation in the affairs of another."

"We are all seeking the restoration of international commerce in ways which preclude the building up of large favourable trade balances by one nation at the expense of the other."

TRADE BARRIERS.

Fears of aggression and the expenditure of vast sums on armaments continued, with the building up of trade barriers, to prevent any great progress in peace or trade agreements.

The United States, he added, cannot participate in the political arrangements of Europe, but is ready to co-operate at any time in practical measure on a world basis for the immediate reduction of armaments and the lowering of trade barriers.

WAR DEBTS.

Regarding war debts to the United States, President Roosevelt said he expects to report on this matter separately later.

Several nations, acknowledging their debts, had made token payments. Others had defaulted. Finland alone had paid in fully.

TRICKS OF THE RICH.

Returning to the domestic problems of the country, the President foreshadowed stringent measures against persons and groups who have been living off their neighbours by unethical and criminal methods. He castigated tax dodgers and the high officials of banks and corporations who had grown rich at the expense of stockholders and the public.

The President also said that the strong arm of the law was required against crimes of organised banditry, lynchings and kidnappings.

PROHIBITION REPEAL.

He thought that the repeal of Prohibition should materially aid in eliminating crimes arising from the illegal traffic in liquor. The Government would continue to supplement the work of State and other agencies for the relief of unemployment, including large schemes of public works.

GOLD POLICY.

The President explained his gold policy as having two objectives, the strengthening of the whole financial structure and the development of a medium of exchange which would not vary much in its purchasing and debt-paying power.

He expressed intention of entering upon stabilisation discussions based on permanent worldwide objectives, but said that careful investigations had proved that many of America's sister nations were not ready.

WALL STREET DISAPPOINTED.

Later, Wall Street is disappointed by the omission from rather than by the contents of President Roosevelt's speech to Congress. It induced a brief selling flurry on the Stock Exchange.

The newspapers appear to be equally dissatisfied. The Evening Sun, whose comment is typical, asserts that the speech did not contain a single concrete evidence of the progress or otherwise of the recovery programme.—Reuter.

MORE INDECENT PICTURES

SEQUEL TO POLICE RAID

A seizure of indecent photographs in cardboard boxes at a shop in Staveley Street, resulted in the appearance of Lau King-kee before Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning, charged with exposing them for sale.

Det-Insp. Carey said the raid was made yesterday afternoon. The defendant was not present at the time, but brought to Central Police Station this morning, and charged. In a cardboard box there were various samples of nude photographs, priced at four cents each. A search revealed more pictures.

Defendant contended they were old pictures. If he had them with a view to selling, he would have had new ones.

Insp. Carey mentioned that with regard to photographs of an indecent nature, the police have had strict instructions to bring them all in.

Defendant gave evidence, and in reply to Insp. Carey, said he bought the pictures for his own interest.

Defendant was convicted and fined $10. The pictures were ordered to be confiscated.

SMUGGLED WINE & TOBACCO

CONFISCATION OF BOAT

Two Chinese boatmen, arrested in Aberdeen harbour, appeared before Mr. Balfour in the Central Police Court this morning on remand charges of the possession of 224 gallons (39 jars) of Chinese wine and a quantity of Chinese prepared tobacco and five pounds of cigars, on which duty had been evaded. The contraband was smuggled on their boat, of 86 piculs capacity, from Macao.

Mr. Horace Lo pleaded guilty on behalf of the first defendant and not guilty on behalf of the second man.

For the prosecution, R. O. Grimmit accepted the plea and the second defendant was discharged.

R. O. Grimmit said the prosecution asked for the maximum penalty to be imposed on the first man. The jars found on the boat were fitted with rubber caps, for floating purposes. Gear for "dropping" and "picking up" purposes was also discovered on the boat at Apichau.

The first defendant was fined $2,000 or six months' hard labour, and the contraband, together with the boat, was ordered to be confiscated.

THREE-DECKER TARIFF

SIR W. ALEXANDER'S PLAN

A "three-decker" tariff system was advocated by Brigadier-General Sir William Alexander, M.P., President of the National Union of Manufacturers, at the annual dinner of the Union at the May Fair Hotel.

Sir William suggested that the first step was to revise the most-favoured-nation clause, and then to make full use of their bargaining power.

"It implies a tariff of what is known as the 'three-decker' type; the lowest tier for those countries, the middle tier for those countries which give us something, and the highest tier for those foreign countries which give us nothing."

Sir Henry Page Croft, M.P., said trade agreements would never be profitable so long as they were ruled by the most-favoured-nation clause.

"PRIVILEGE" PLEADED AGAIN

MR. JUSTICE AVORY'S ANSWER

A detective-sergeant who was called as a witness before Mr. Justice Avory, in the King's Bench Division, was asked to produce his diary and notes.

"I cannot produce them without directions," he declared. "And I give them," said Mr. Justice Avory.

The documents were promptly produced.

An official from the Ministry of Labour produced some documents which Mr. D. N. Pritt, K.C., desired to have left in the Court. "I cannot order you to leave them," he said to the witness.

"But I can and I do," said the Judge.

LARGER TYPE OF SPORTING FISH

SALMON-TROUT BREEDING EXPERIMENT

Can salmon and trout be crossed, and what kind of fish will result? An experiment is to be tried at hatcheries at Littlecote, near Hungerford, Wiltshire, in an attempt to produce a game fish larger than trout, but less devoted to the sea than salmon.

Mr. H. J. Skinner, fishery keeper to Sir Ernest Wills, has been experimenting there for four years on crossing brown trout with rainbow trout, in order to breed a larger type of fish. A chance for a more ambitious attempt has now offered itself.

About Christmas time Mr. Skinner will be netting spawning salmon on a private estate in Hampshire for Southampton University College, who are carrying out important experiments on the River Avon. He will take breeding male trout with him from Littlecote to the Avon, and cross them with netted female salmon. He hopes also to take home with him a male salmon for further hybridising.

FIGHT IN A TEAHOUSE

SHANGHAI MEN AND CANTONESE

A fight between a Cantonese and two Shanghai men was precipitated at the Tin Sam tea house, No. 370, Queen's Road West, on Tuesday night, through the refusal of one of the Shanghai men to pay $5 to the Cantonese who demanded the money.

All three men, Wong Yee, (the Cantonese), Lau Hung-kan and Suen Hui-chong, appeared before Mr. Hamilton, at the Central Magistracy this morning, on two charges of fighting and damaging furniture and crockery to the value of $52.75 at the tea house. After evidence, they were convicted on both charges, and fined $25 or one month, each on the first charge and cautioned on the second.

Inspector Hourihan said the first defendant was supposed to have asked for $5 from the third defendant, who refused. The first defendant then struck him, and the second defendant joined in the fight. When the police arrived, all three men were struggling. A lot of furniture and crockery was broken.

Cheung Choi, a Chinese constable, said he saw the first defendant throw a brass kettle, while the third defendant was holding aloft a chair, though he did not strike with it. All defendants were fighting when he arrived. He arrested the first defendant.

Two other constables and a waiter gave evidence to the effect that all defendants were fighting. The first defendant said he had gone to the tea house to drink tea and did not fight. He saw the second and third defendants fighting with two Cantonese men, who got away before the police arrived, and he was mistakenly arrested. He did not throw the kettle.

Second defendant denied having struck the first defendant; and also denied fighting. He said the first and third defendants were fighting.

Third defendant said the first defendant, who was a member of a triad society, came to him and asked for $5. He asked him whether he would be guaranteed immunity, and also asked for a receipt. The first defendant said he would not give him a receipt and then struck him. He did not strike first defendant.

INTERPORT TRIAL ONLY EMPHASISES BIG PROBLEM

ALLEN AND MORRISON SHOULD BE EARMARKED: TAY'S PROMISING FORM

(By "Veritas").

YESTERDAY'S Interport trial did little but to emphasise that it will be necessary to conduct more than two such matches before the final selection of the team for Shanghai can be made.

It would, perhaps, be foolish to attempt to draw hard and fast conclusions before next Monday's game has been played, but the rather provoking fact remains that yesterday's trial afforded comparatively no assistance to the selectors.

The absence of the Gosano brothers was most unfortunate, completely upsetting, as it did, the Blues team, which could not as a result, be regarded as anything like a possible Interport XI.

DEFENCES ON TOP.

Defences created the deepest impression, especially the Allen-Morrison formation. They at least played well enough to be earmarked as possible visitors to Shanghai. Allen shone in all his glory against the Ridley-Bickford wing, and was never at a loss. He was against by far the most dangerous attacking flank of the Blues, and because of this, and the manner in which he accomplished the task of subduing it, he can almost be regarded as a natural selection.

I imagine it will eventually boil down to whether he shall have A. V. Gosano or Morrison as partner.

But this department has never offered any deep problem. We have at least four full backs of Interport standard in local football just now. The selectors' real trouble will be found in picking the half back line.

PIVOTAL OR NOWHERE.

I am firmly convinced, particularly after his display yesterday, that it is of no use putting Leung Wing-chui at wing half. I would go further and suggest that it would be detrimental to the team. It is useless contemplating Leung's brilliant displays at centre-half and put him on the flanks because of them. Once there he is like a fish out of water.

That he resents the restricted area in which to operate is palpably obvious; that such restriction wholly affects his game is also as plain as day-light. Leung has either to occupy the pivotal berth, or none at all. Unhappily this seems the only alternative.

Cork, Podmore and Channing, normally each one a centre-half, adapted themselves fairly well to the flank positions. Channing fell away in the second half, but earlier on he had Young Shui-yie well under control. Podmore had to adopt bustling tactics to subdue the speedy and unorthodox Blake, and beyond his breaking-up work, the Borderers man was not seen to tremendous advantage.

Cork was the best wing half on the field, and it would be interesting to see if he could operate as successfully on the left as on the right. If so his claims would be very strong.

TAY SPOILS HIMSELF.

Neither Beltrac nor Pardoe could be held up as a shining light. The Artillery skipper is nowhere near to capturing his form of a year ago, and Beltrac has an unfortunate tendency of roaming, thereby finding himself continually out-positioned.

On the whole the half backs offered a difficult and complex study.

If Tay Qun-tong hadn't allowed his success in tricky footwork to go to his head, and in the second half to have become so selfish, one would have felt it necessary to proclaim him as the obvious man for the inside right berth. But it is team work all the time which is needed in an Interport match, and Tay will have to recognise that if he is to make the grade.

Beyond this one must concede that Tay gave a delightful exhibition. He created openings for every member of the Whites quintette. In the second half he and Young Shui-yie played together with perfect understanding, and the young Singapore player was for ever endeavouring to put Elliott through.

As an attack the Whites forward line enjoyed rather more limelight than their opposite numbers. Elliott's leadership was a queer mixture. He was intelligently constructive when moving the ball down field, but less successful in front of goal. Equally so must it be acknowledged, he was thoroughly luckless. Several times he lunged in great shots, which were either finely saved by Combey, or they just missed the objective.

Ernest Strange was again rather individualistic, but there is no denying that even in this type of game, he is a fine attacker. Speed is an enormous factor in his favour, and give him an opportunity to shoot and one can always reasonably expect a goal.

THE BETTER COMBINATION.

Despite the neat combination of Ridley and Bickford yesterday, I still believe that Strange and Bickford are a better pair, and that they are even to be preferred to Ridley and Hocquard.

Bickford has somewhat stronger claims for the left wing berth than Hocquard because he is capable of coming through a difficult position on his own with colours flying. Hocquard is essentially reliant on his partner providing the opening. Hocquard will have an opportunity of making me eat my words on Monday next.

It is doubtful whether the selectors came any nearer to filling the centre-forward position. Elliott was in some respects, more impressive than Ho Ka-keung, and his more energetic methods might make him preferable to Howe. For myself I feel that Dave Leonard is the man for the job, but here again we shall have to wait until after Monday.

Tam Kong-pak, given Sheppard as a partner, and this after operating on his own for the first ten minutes, was hardly offered a fair trial. He accomplished quite a lot of good spade work, but always found Morrison the final and conclusive stumbling block. I would like to see Ward and Gosano against Morrison, or A. V. Gosano, and I think it is very probable the Interport right wing would be found.

GOOD GOALKEEPERS BOTH.

The exchanges yesterday were interesting, but lack of goals robbed the game of excitement. Both Wong Wing and Combey figured prominently in saving some red hot shots, and it is conceivable that the Interport custodianship will rest between these two, with Wong Wing as the more likely nominee.

The first half was blank, although both goals were raided in turn and experienced narrow escapes. One glaring fault to be seen on both sides was the inability of the inside forwards to keep up with the ball, with the result that numbers of centres were begging.

It was not until the second stage was well advanced that Ernest Strange beat Combey and he followed this up two minutes later with a dandy shot which again found the mark.

The Blues retaliated and Ridley beat the unsighted Wong Wing in a very bad light, whilst Ho Ka-keung should have levelled the scores in the last minutes, but was wide.

Teams:—

and Morrison; Cork, Beltrac and Channing; Young Shui-yie, Tay Qun-tong, Elliott, E. Strange and Blake.

Blues:—Combey; D. Leonard and S. Strange; Podmore, Pardoe and Leung Wing-chui; Sheppard, Tam Kong-pak, Ho Ka-keung, Ridley and Bickford.

May Be Interport Partners

Allan (left) and Morrison of the Royal Artillery who, as a result of their display yesterday, may figure as Interport defenders against Shanghai.

GREAT DISPLAY OF GOALKEEPING

Field, keeping goal for the Royal Marines of the Cumberland, played one of his best games of the season to prevent the Engine Room of the Cumberland from scoring more than one goal yesterday, when the teams met in a hockey match.

No score at half time gave a true indication of the tenacious fight put up by the Marines. Admittedly the Marines backs put in some fine stickplay, but field in goal proved the unpassable barrier.

The second half saw a lucky shot from a melee in front of the Marine's goalmouth, give the Engine Room their winning lead.

SUGGESTED XI TO OPPOSE AUSSIES

(By "R.H.B.")

The visit of the Australian Ladies touring hockey team can be looked forward to as marking another important milestone in the history of the game among the ladies of Hongkong. In itself, it will be a unique occasion and for the local eleven a beneficial experience.

Local trial matches have commenced and the selectors have been casting a keen eye on the displays of each player. To my mind, the greatest difficulty facing the selectors is the choice of the forward line. For the defence there is an ample amount of talent available.

This point I know has been raised before, but it is necessary to state once more that equal representation of each team is not essential. It is necessary that the best player for each and every position be chosen.

My team would be as follows:—R. Rose (St. Andrew's); E. M. Gray (Hongkong Ladies); A. Fowler (Y. Ladies); M. L. W. Bryson (C. B. A. Ladies); B. M. Pope (Hongkong Ladies); E. Wallace (Hongkong Ladies); E. Selby (Hongkong Ladies); J. Churchill (Hongkong Ladies); M. Woolley (St. Andrew's); A. Alves (Recreio) and O. Brown (Y. Ladies).

HINTS TO UMPIRES

By "Bully-Off"

Be quick and decisive with your decisions during the first ten or fifteen minutes of the game and you will soon get the game in hand. Penalise any attempt towards dangerous hitting and rough play and the players will soon realise that you are there to take charge of a game and not permit a rough and tumble.

The most enjoyable games are those which need the least whistle so keep it down to the minimum. Where an unintentional offence gains no advantage allow it to pass unchecked. But let the player know you have noticed it and that although he has been let off he will be punished if the offence is repeated.

TO MEET SUNDAY IN CLASSIC GAME

(By "Veritas").

NOT even the Junior Shield matches can divert attention from the great football match at Caroline Hill on Sunday when the Lincolns, present leaders of the first division, meet South China, formidable challengers, and present holders of the championship, in their return encounter.

ANY repetition of the unfortunate incidents which marred the Sookunpoo match will be wholly deplorable. There is no reason, and therefore no excuse for such conduct. Spectators (and they will probably form a record crowd) will visit the South China arena to see football worthy of two such fine teams and it will mean wilful waywardness if anything but the best traditions are upheld.

The Lincolns, at the time of writing have not selected their team, but unless Heath is fit, it is not likely to be changed from that which rather luckily took points from the East Lanes last week. I think we can expect to see the following line-up:

Duncan
Rowden
Edmondson
Dudley
Clark
Bell
Baldry
McGuinness
Higgins
Ridley
Hocquard

The South China line-up is always doubtful up to the last minutes, and because of this one can only surmise the probable team. They are looking forwards to the return of Fung King-cheung to counteract the enforced absence of Wong Mee-shun, and it is not unlikely that with the idea of strengthening the half back line Li Tin-sang will return. If so, the following will probably be seen in action.

Wong Wing
Li Tin-sang
Lau Mau
Leung In-chun
Leung Wing-chui
Lee Kwok-wai
Young Shui-yie
Tam Kong-pak
Fung King-cheung
Pau Kung
Tay Qun-tong

CHINESE TO WIN.

With such a line-up South China can be expected to just about pull it off. I wouldn't say the Lincolns were out and out lucky to garner both points from the earlier encounter, but I certainly think that South China were not at their best, and that on their own pastures this Sunday they will serve up a somewhat different display.

The lively Higgins and the subtle Ridley will again be the big thorns in the Chinese defence, whilst the attack has the problem of overcoming the dour soldiers' half back line.

These struggles in themselves should be sufficient to guarantee some exceptionally fine and exciting exchanges.

Three other teams will be directly interested in the result—the Borderers, Navy and St. Joseph's. But I fear the Navy's interest will wane after this week, for many of the team will be leaving for the southern cruise on the 9th, and with them all hopes for league honours.

INTERESTED PARTIES.

The Borderers and St. Joseph's appear to have comparatively easy tasks. The former entertain the Athletic on Sunday, and I can't see them losing, whilst the Saints make the trip across the harbour to be received by the Recreio. A win for South China, Borderers and St. Joseph's is going to make the solution to the championship problem as complicated as that of international disarmament.

On the other hand the Lincolns have a splendid opportunity of putting South China practically out of the race. Sunday's match carries for them a big task and what to other interested parties will mean a heavy responsibility.

Interesting Array of Matches

The draw for the Junior shield is exceedingly interesting, and games above the usual standard associated with first round ties should materialise.

It the Royal Artillery hadn't been so unlucky as to run up against South China, leaders of the second division I would have been prepared to make them a quiet tip for the Shield.

The Gunners have sorted together a very useful side: as a team they can give the seniors points. It is not even unreasonable to imagine them beating South China at Caroline Hill. Certainly the Artillery play the right type of football for cup-ties, and if they can establish an early lead their entry into the second round is quite feasible.

The Borderers appear good enough to pass on safely, but the fact must not be lost sight of that the Young Indians last week defeated the Athletic, and on their day are capable of upsetting the best teams in the junior divisions. The Navy cannot afford another lapse as they suffered against the Artillery last week. If they are to beat the Athletic, the Lincolns and South China "B" however, should win comfortably.

COULD NOT STAND THE PACE

H.M.S. Whitehall Collapse Against Veteran

The Veteran convincingly beat the Whitehall in an Eighth Flotilla Hockey League match yesterday afternoon at King's Park by seven goals to one.

In the first half the exchanges were fast, and, at times, the players revealed exceptionally good form, especially Hind and Fossay, who broke up some determined attacks.

To illustrate the good fight put up by the Whitehall against a better team, the Veteran only led by one nil at half time. But the losers could not keep up the pace and collapsed in the second half.

In the second half Rimmer scored four goals, while Bellis, Mid. Normann, and Morley each added one for the Veteran.

ENTERTAINING FIGHTS

The preliminaries to the Semi-Finals and Finals of the China Fleet Boxing Championships took place last night in the Old Canteen Theatre.

The first fight between Boy Prince of the Berwick and St. Brittain of the Destroyers, showed the "Boy" at his best, and he was superior in every move. St. Brittain instead of covering up, allowed himself to take punishment, waiting for the opportunity to land one of his chance blows for a K.O.

Owing to illness the Cumberland nominees had to cancel their entries at the last minute, and as a result Ord. Feldwick gained a walk-over against Ord. Walls, while A. B. Barber of the Suffolk had a walk over from Roy Jones.

The fourth fight was the best of the evening, both men giving of their best and apparently determined to settle the issue as soon as possible. From the sound of the gong, both St. King and Sig. Head were willing to mix their blows, with the result an excellent bout was seen. St. King was given the decision on points.

The fifth and last fight of the evening was between Tel. McDonald and St. Cochrane. Both boxers in the first two rounds were rather on the careful side, their blows having no power behind them, but they were remarkably quick and clever. Tel. McDonald was given the points.

The following are the points in the China Fleet Boxing Championships. Berwick are leading the Fleet with 9 points, while Kent come second with 6 points. The rest are Suffolk 4 pts, D.F. 4 pts, Medway 2 pts, Eagle 2 pts, Cumberland and S/S each no points.

After the initial weeks of slow training, some of the Derby griffins for the 1934 season are now producing fast gallops, as witnessed by the improved times taken at Happy Valley yesterday morning. Soldier of China was impressive in a mile and a quarter run, doing the full distance in 2:58, with a satisfactory last quarter of 31 seconds. Prima Donna, which was kept over from the previous season, and Spinaway together with Sandy Bay and Racing Pluck also galloped in beautiful manner, and should be watched in their subsequent appearances.

Among the Australian ponies, Able Amazon, Bag Tor, Mountain Cat and Princess Angeline all did their work with ease and should prove to be amongst the winners in the next annual meeting.

The ponies were galloped on the sand course. The list of griffins trained appears below:

CHINA FLEET FOOTBALL

LEWIS SCORES DECIDER

Playing in the Second Division of the China Fleet Football League played yesterday afternoon at the Valley, the Wren defeated the Whitshed by one goal to nil, after there being no score at half time.

It was an excellent encounter, both teams indulging in clean fast football. Head in goal for the Wren and Pearson for the Whitshed, played well, and it was no fault of Pearson that the ball found its way into the net.

Bookless played his usual good game for the Whitshed, being dangerous every time the ball was up in the Wren's half.

The defence of the Wren, in Mathew and Symonds, was definitely good, both showing a complete understanding of each other's play, and covering well.

The second half saw the Wren score through Lewis during one of their visits, this deciding the issue.

The following lined out under P. O. Holding of the Keppel, H.M.S. Wren:—Head; Mathew, Symonds, Scandrett, Davis, Kink, McAteer, Lewis, Timberlake, Griffin, Woods.

H.M.S. Whitshed:—Pearson, Strudwick, Edwards, Chadwick, Suter, Bryan, Gambin, Bookless, Handford, Walker, Roberts.

BERWICK RIGHT ON TOP

And Easily Defeat Cumberland

The Berwick overwhelmed the Cumberland by three goals to one at the Valley yesterday afternoon in a third division game.

From the start the Berwick assumed command of the game, keeping the play in the Cumberland half most of the time. On one occasion the Cumberland did manage to break through and score but this was the only liberty the Berwick allowed them to take.

A friendly football encounter between the Pandora and the Royal Engineers witnessed an overwhelming defeat for the Pandora by five goals to one at the Valley yesterday afternoon.

BRITAIN COMPLIES

SAFETY OF FUKIEN
RESIDENTS

WITHDRAWAL ADVISED

London, Jan. 3.
The Chinese Government, having decided to take warlike action to suppress the rebellion in the province of Fukien, requested the British Charge d'Affaires in Peking on December 30, that British subjects in Amoy, Foochow and the neighbourhood be warned to withdraw to the islands of Kulangsu and Nantai respectively for safety.
About 300 British subjects live in the province of Fukien, of whom the great majority normally reside in Amoy and Foochow. The greater number of these residents have their homes on the islands mentioned and conduct their business on the mainland.
The remainder of the British subjects in the province consists chiefly of missionaries.
The British Consuls at Amoy and Foochow have been instructed to advise, at their discretion, British subjects to withdraw to places of safety.
The fact that the advice of the Chinese Government has thus been passed on to British subjects in no way absolves the former from its due responsibility to do its utmost to afford protection and to avoid damage to British property, not only at Amoy and Foochow but throughout the province.—British Wireless.

FORGOT WHAT SHE HAD TO SAY

WOMAN WHO WANTED TO ADD TO STORY

Charged with having in her custody an unregistered mut-tai, aged 14 years, a married woman, Chan Sung, caused laughter in the Central Police Court this morning, when at the close of her evidence before Mr. Balfour, she asked permission to be allowed to add to what she had already said.

The request granted, the defendant replied, amid much laughter, "I have now forgotten what I wanted to say."

Sub-Inspector H. W. Fraser, of the S.C.A., said that on January 2, the girl came to the S.C.A. and complained of being ill-treated. She was seen by a lady inspector, and had two cane marks on the left arm as well as other bruises on her body. She was brought on payment of some money to the defendant's daughter-in-law. The girl was made to rise at 7 a.m. and retire to bed at 11 p.m. and should she be late in rising, she was caned with a feather duster. She did household work and, in addition, had to care for the youngest daughter of the defendant's married daughter. The girl's mother was an amah in Hennessy Road, being driven away from the country by a ne'er-do-well husband.

The girl considered herself to be a mut-tai and the defendant contended she was a relative.

Evidence was taken and the case was adjourned until Saturday morning.

G. W. R. CHAIRMAN

DEATH

London, Jan. 3.
Viscount Churchill, who for 25 years has been Chairman of the Great Western Railway, died today, aged 69, from pneumonia, after a brief illness.

The first holder of the title, which was created in 1902, he was a godson of the late Queen Victoria.

As a youth Viscount Churchill was Page of Honour to Queen Victoria. Then he passed into the Coldstream Guards, resigning his commission in 1889. He acted as Lord Chamberlain at the Coronation of King Edward VII and as Master of the Robes at the Coronation of King George V. In politics he was a conservative, being one of the whips in the House of Lords. In addition to his chairmanship of the Great Western Railway he was chairman of its subsidiary undertakings, the Fishguard and Ronaire Railways and Harbours and the Cork City Railways company, besides being a member of the committee of the Grand Junction Canal Company. He was also Chairman of the British Overseas Bank and a Director of the P. and O. and B.I. Steamship Companies.

The heir to the title is the Hon. Victor Alexander Spencer, who has written largely on art and literature and who was mentioned in despatches during his service in the Great War.—British Wire- less.
